Czech Farmers Ordered To Turn Over Poultry

Czech farmers have been ordered to turn over all poultry to the Nazi army or face harsh penalties, according to a warning in the German Neue Tag, published in occupied Czechoslovakia.

"Breeders must sell poultry for slaughter," the Neue Tag announced, quoting a Nazi decree. "Under certain conditions they are allowed to use for themselves one goose, two ducks or four chickens each quarter. Breeders must offer all poultry within eight days. In the future such poultry must be turned over to the authorities every week."

The Canadian provinces of Quebec, Ontario, and British Columbia are all larger than the state of Texas.
