Bennett College Host To Religious Workers Group

"The Christian Approach to Racial Tension in the United States," received the attention of 102 delegates to the third conference sponsored by the Fellowship of Religious Workers in Negro Colleges and Universities held here last weekend at Bennett College. Twenty-six colleges were represented in the delegation of students, faculty, and administrative heads.

The conference opened Friday night with Dean William Stuart Nelson of Howard University listing certain "critical options" in the realm of race which face Americans today. This analysis was followed by an application to the Christian ethic by Dr. Howard Thurman also of Howard University.

Saturday sessions were devoted to discussions of the theme under Dean J. H. Satterwhite, Livingstone College; the Rev. William Herbert King, executive secretary of the National Council Student Christian Associations; Prof. J. Neal Hughley, N. C. College for Negroes; and Dean Hilda Davis, Talladega College.

Interpretations from the discussion groups were given Saturday night by Dean T. Ruth Brett, Bennett College; Dean Melvin Watson, Dillard University; Professor Shelby Books, Lincoln University; and Maynard Catchings, Student Christian Movement.

In a brief summary of the discussion Sunday morning Dean Frank T.
