Bennett President Speaks To International Relations Group

"The Negro situation in America offers a test to our sincerity to make the democracy real, declared President David D. Jones, speaking before the Carolina Institute of International Relations held at Woman's college, University of North Carolina, here last week.

"In spite of many disappointments, President Jones said, the Negro still has faith that democracy will triumph and that the democratic way of life in the post-war world will affect his children."

President Jones was introduced by Dr. W. C. Jackson, dean of Woman's college, University of North Carolina, and chairman of the Bennett board of trustees.

"The danger in the world situation today is that unless the people who have power give some of these things for which we fight to those to whom these things have been denied, freedom, justice, and the right to rule, unless the hopes of the people are in a measure met, we shall have the old struggle again, just as we have it today."

The college administrator questioned the possibility of the victorious allies thinking of America as a place where the four freedoms have been tried. Russia or maybe China, he asserted, might suggest looking at how the freedoms have worked as applied to Negroes in America.

The speaker then pointed out numerous instances where the four freedoms are not applying to Negroes in America and listed segregation in worship, the Palmer case in Newport News, and the necessity for presidential order 8802.

Dr. Jones continued stating that by force of circumstances the Negro is fighting for world liberation and struggling for the victory of ideas and ideals with the hope that these rights and privileges may be extended to all peoples, including the Negro.

He decried the lack of honest exchanges of ideas between Negroes and whites and the situation which causes the Negro to look at everything through a sandwich."

"Negroes wish democracy to live. We wish to idea that the worth of every individual is supreme to be magnified. We wish to make the tenets of democracy real and valid, not only for ourselves, but for all people."

Sugar Conspiracy Charges Are Heard In District Court

A conspiracy case involving the sale of large amounts of sugar said to be intended for the manufacture of whisky was in progress before criminal session of United States District court in the federal courtroom here this morning. Judge Johnson J. Hayes, presiding.

The defendants are Alphie E. Spears, manager of a doughnut shop on West Lee street, who, court evidence showed, sold huge amounts of sugar to additional defendants, Wade E. Harvell and Charlie Walls, Negro, for the purpose of manufacture of whisky. The other defendants are Willie James Rainey and George Wooden, Negroes, who with Spears, Harvell and Rainey, pleaded guilty, and Sam Sanders, Negro, who pleaded not guilty, but was found guilty by jury.

Evidence showed that Harvell and Walls were engaged in operating a still eight miles north of Greensboro during a 90-day period which began in December of last year, that Spears sold large amounts of sugar weekly to Harvell and Walls and that during this period his consumption of sugar was approximately three times the amount it was previous to this time.

The court sentenced Ima Jean Baker, 52, Negro, charged with sale of liquor at 228 East Gaston street, to one year, and ordered her co-defendant, Anna Williams, negro, to temporary probation until next term of criminal court in December. William Long, High Point Negro, known as "Black Diamond" was sentenced to one year on liquor charges and his co-defendant, Austin Wallace, Negro, also of High Point, was given temporary probation until next term of court.

Harvey Massey and Mildred Massey, Greensboro Negroes, charged with violation of the liquor laws, pleaded guilty. Harvey Massey was fined $250 and placed on two years probation until next term of court.

J. Herman Lewey, Greensboro, pleaded guilty on liquor charges and was fined $300 and given a two years suspended sentence on probation.

At yesterday afternoon's session of court the 11 Negroes charged with conspiracy to violate an internal revenue law governing non-taxpaid whisky, were sentenced as follows:

DICK CAMPBELL

Dick Campbell announced everything in readiness for the pageant, "For This We Fight," following completion of the full dress rehearsal of the spectacle on the Bennett campus.

The entire cast used costumes which had arrived earlier in the week from New York for the event and their varied colors added to the splendor of the pageant which will be presented tonight on the college campus at 8 p. m.

The cast is headed by a host of local talent both vocal and dramatic. Among the vocal artists to appear are Charles Coleman, baritone and head of the music department at A. and T. College who will sing two numbers, one of which is, "Jesus Walked This Lonesome Valley," by Dawson.

Miss Cherie Artis, former singer of station WGBG, Goldsboro will sing several spirituals. One of her numbers is "Freedom Road," new number by the well-known author, Langston Hughes.

Miss Maxine Lawson, Bennett student, will do two interpretative dances to the music of Josh White. The numbers are: "Hard Time Blues", and "Defense Factory Blues."

Mrs. F. A. Jackson, soprano and graduate of Howard University music department, will sing. Bernard L. Mason of the music department of A. and T. college and outstanding violinist also appear on the program.

Orrin Clayton Suthern, II, organist and director of music at Bennett will direct the 200 voice choir which will furnish background music for the pageant.

Jesse O. Thomas, representative of the American Red Cross will speak.

Mr. Campbell's production staff includes Charles Green of the dramatic department of A. and T. college and Miss Gladys I. Forde of the Bennett dramatic department.

In the event of heavy rain the pageant will be presented Saturday night.
