INTERNATIONAL
 SUNDAY SCHOOL
 LESSON

JESUS AND THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

Golden Text: Think not that I came to destroy the law or the prophets: I came not to destroy, but to fulfil. — Matthew 5:17.

JESUS FULFILLING
 THE TEN
 COMMANDMENTS

The aim of these lessons for the present quarter is to help the student interpret the Ten Commandments in the light of the teachings of Jesus and to apply them in personal and social relationships.

If you have watched a group of section hands working on the railroad, either building new tracks or mending old ones, you have probably observed that they frequently use a gauge in the form of an iron bar. This gauge exactly measures the correct distance between the rails. It corrects any errors that the workmen are likely to make. Christians have a gauge, or standard, by which to determine the correctness of life and conduct. It is the person of Christ. To the light of his teaching we need to bring all principles of action and relationships of life. He is for us the measure of what is Christian.

Pioneers are always out in front. They think and act beyond their contemporaries. They set the pace for those who follow after. This fact explains why they are frequently misunderstood by those who are less progressive in spirit. The liberalism of Jesus in his relation to many of the laws and customs of his time were cruelly misjudged. He was accused of indifference and even of hostility to many of his people. He was not fettered by customary ideas but was creative and independent in his thinking. This was of course a quality of leadership, but his neighbors did not always consider it a safe leadership. His treatment of the Sabbath and other ritualistic observances was considered revolutionary in a dangerous degree. Much of the opposition that culminated in his Crucifixion is traceable to this blindness on the part of constituted authorities that he would upset peace and security of the na-

Jesus respected the laws of Israel even those laws of more than did those who were such sticklers for its observance. He saw in the Ten Commandments, for example, an expression of basic ethical requirements, a foundation for community welfare, a part of the nature of things. They represented to him the will of God as it appears in highest requirements for human living. Therefore, he revered them as he revered God himself. But he went so far beyond the mere technical observance of these laws that many people did not follow him. Here, he felt, was only the beginning of good conduct, the bare foundation on which a superstructure of character must be built. Something more was required of his followers than the ability to say, as did the young man in the lesson, "All these things have I observed." The vision of Jesus traveled beyond the horizon of law. There must have always been in his eyes a far look, as if he saw something that the mass of men did not see. "If thou wouldst be perfect" represents the far-reaching goal in which he sought to interest his followers.

We are all familiar with two kinds of hospitality. One fulfills every requirement of courtesy and attention. It is socially and technically correct. No element is lacking; but when we are welcomed into such a home, there is a sense of restraint. We cannot quite define it, but we are not quite at ease. There is, however, another type of hospitality. It is so genuine and kindly in its attitude that we never stop to ask if all the requirements have been met and every courtesy extended. It is an atmosphere of friendliness, much greater than any technical correctness. We find ourselves happily and freely at home from the moment of our arrival.

This distinction reaches down into almost every act and relationship of life. It suggests the difference between the legal correctness of those who are scrupulous adherents of law and order and those who, in the spirit of Christ, seldom think of rules and regulations but unconsciously and automatically reveal the greatness, beauty, and truth of Christian living. "Think not," said Jesus, "that I came to destroy the law or the prophets: I came not to destroy, but to fulfil."

FACULTY CONFERENCE AT SHAW UNIVERSITY

The Shaw University faculty conference for the school year 1943-44 began Wednesday, September 15, and lasted through Thursday, September 16, with Dr. Donald Faulkner, representative of the Board of Education of the Northern Convention, conducting the discussion designed to stimulate a re-examination of the policies and objectives of Shaw University in light of new world conditions.

Special emphasis was placed by Dr. Faulkner on the establishing of objectives and the proper methods and curriculum to be employed in the reaching of these objectives. Among the problems incident to the frustration of many students is the absence of continuity in student programs, the low intellectual life of many college campuses, the neglect of individuals in a program of mass education, the absence of vital contact with life and its problems, and narrow specialization.

Other items of the two-day conference included the out-

AGGIES TO FIELD STRONG SQUAD IN OPENING CLASH

Coach Charles DeBerry, A. and T. college mentor who will send his 1943 Bulldogs into their first game here this weekend, believes his new eleven will be far better than the 1942 team in some departments.

The Bulldogs, who won four and lost five last year and then licked Southern university, of New Orleans, 14-6 in the Flower Bowl game at Jacksonville, Fla., will open against Allen university, of Columbia, S. C., in Memorial stadium here at 8 o'clock Saturday night.

Coach DeBerry hates to crawl out on a limb, but he says he'll have far better passing and running this season, with more sensational games likely to result. However, the teams defense is not expected to be as good, at least in the early contest.

A. and T. has an impressive list of starting candidates this season. At ends are Ernie Lewis, letterman transfer from Seattle, Wash., and Roy Gearing, playing his fourth year with the Aggies. George Haith, of Greensboro, and Turk Wright will press those two men for their assignments.

There's plenty of weight at the tackles, with Asbury Fikes, 220, of Burgaw, running opposite Oatman Fisher, 218, former brilliant Salisbury fullback. Top guard is Bill Saunders, of New York, 296-pound star playing his second year, while the other berth will probably go to Ben Harrison, of Gastonia, or Trippy Tribble, also of Seattle.

Marcus Beathea, 165, is a holdover center, but he may lose his position to lanky, 6-foot-4, 185-pound Charles Washington, from Huntington, W. Va., who is sure to be a star. Washington came out for football the first time last Saturday, and although the other boys have a three-week start on him, he's showing promise.

Co-captains Hubert Doubs, quarterback from Philadelphia, and rated a 10-second man in uniform, and Bootsie Powell, high scoring 215-pound fullback, lead the backs.

They will be aided by Charlie Weaver, sensational halfback from Chapel Hill, who is a consistent 65-yard punter, good passer and runner, and halfback William Willis, new, shifty 10-second halfback from Boston.

Other good backs are Peter Wood, 196, of Gastonia, Arthur Gist, of Spartanburg, S. C., and two fast ball-toters from Raleigh, Hicks and Bryan.

A. and T. will again operate from the Notre Dame formation.

DUDLEY HIGH SCHOOL
 PLANS FOOTBALL GAME
 FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2

Dudley High school will play their first game of football with Statesville High school at Greensboro Memorial Stadium at 2 p. m. Coach B. Cain says that the team has plenty of pep, and will bring the bacon home.

DAREDEVIL TROUPE HAS THRILLING JOB OF DANGEROUS TYPE

There are many features of the Cavalcade of Thrills. "Lucky" Kelly, Len Holmes, Chet Gibson, Dee Toran, Steve Edwards, and Jack Wright are among the headliners of the spectacular troupe of stars, all of them inured to the omnipresent perils of their fantastic profession.

The program also will include stock car races, "jalopies" making up the field and with no material essential to the war effort being used. The shows at the Greensboro, N. C. Fair, on October 9 and 7, will start at 2:30 o'clock with all the thrilling stunts being presented on both afternoons.

ANTI-FREEZE AVAILABLE

"Permanent types" of anti-freeze will be available for use in passenger automobiles throughout the nation beginning October 1, according to a recent WPB amendment to Limitation Order L-51.

TRAINING FOR BOYS

More than one million 16 and 17-year-old boys will be enrolled in voluntary civilian pre-induction training courses in the nation's schools this fall, according to the War Department. Representing an enrollment of more than half of all the physically able boys at these age levels, the students are taking courses that will prepare them for more effective service in the armed forces. Officers at Army Reception Centers record all pre-induction training on the soldier's permanent record card. This training is taken into consideration in making assignments to further training and Army jobs.
