

HENRY MARTIN TUPPER
FOUNDER OF SHAW
UNIVERSITY PRAISED
BY WILLIAM C. CARVER

The beliefs of Henry Martin Tupper, sainted founder of Shaw University, in dignifying common daily tasks, never being a quitter, in the use of the weapon of prayer, and in the goodness of God were commended by William C. Craver, executive secretary of the Houston, Texas YMCA, to more than five hundred Shaw University students, alumni, and friends in the main address delivered on the occasion of the 78th anniversary of Shaw University in the Shaw University Greenleaf Memorial Hall, Friday, November 19, it was, according to members of the Shaw alumni who have attended founder's day celebrations during the past twenty years, one of the most significant Founder's Day celebrations in recent years.

The celebration was marked by the return of numerous prominent Shaw alumni who have made unusual contributions in their fields of service and by the donation of six thousand dollars received from these alumni and various baptist associations and conventions throughout the state of North Carolina.

In addition to the address of Mr. Craver, himself a prominent alumnus of Shaw University, the Founder's Day program included the annual Founder's Day greeting by President Robert P. Daniel; the "In Memoriam" prayer by the Rev. C. F. Pope, Raleigh; scripture reading by the Rev. Claude Trotter, pastor First Baptist Church, Graham; opening and closing prayer by the Rev. W. M. Wyatt of Salisbury; and Rev. G. E. Griffin, executive secretary, General Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, respectively. Music on the program was furnished by the Shaw University choral society under the direction of Mrs. Emily M. Kelley.

Prior to the chapel program students, teachers, and alumni of the Raleigh institution surrounded the grave of Dr. Henry Martin Tupper to pay tribute to the founder in simple ceremony which included prayer by the Rev. A. A. Morisey, Raleigh, the singing of Dr. Tupper's favorite hymn, and "Taps" by Henry Clay Turner a student at Shaw University. A special wreath was placed on the grave by Miss Annie Hudgins a member of the student body.

Mr. Craver extolled the life of Dr. Tupper and explained how he set in motion "constructive forces for good in society that have extended themselves not only throughout the South and the Nation but even to the islands of the sea and far away Africa."

Insisting that the Atlantic charter and the four freedoms are not newly discovered truths, Mr. Craver painted Dr. Tupper as having faced in 1865 with resolutions and determination the same problems that confront the world today. "The big problem" he said was then and is now whether every human being regardless of his situation in life, the creed or his color, shall have the right under God to work without restrictions, barriers or sundry hindrances in his own destiny."

Throughout Dr. Tupper's experiences at Shaw University according to Mr. Craver he never lost faith in human possibilities. He believed essentially in the fact that "it is not the size of the dog in the fight but rather the size of the fight in the dog." Mr. Craver urged his hearers to do as Dr. Tupper and not to forget the little things of life. Americans are notoriously impressed by size: big state, big country, big buildings, big business, big this, etc. It is to be regretted that a good many people are sure that we are winning the war because of the hugeness of our war efforts but we must not forget that at the bottom of this huge effort depends upon efficiency in "ten thousand little common things that make sure the effort."

"Henry Martin Tupper" he continued "friend and missionary has taught us how to believe in a good God in a world like this. He saw evil in the world. He also saw the goodness of God in the world. He started fighting evil himself where he found it."

Platform guests on the Shaw Founder's Day occasion included in addition to those who participated on the program Dean John L. Tilley of the Shaw University School of Religion; Dr. C. C. Spaulding, member of the

SAVE CARTONS

Shoppers can help reduce the load on the under-manned pulp and paper supply business by using and re-using fiber board cartons for taking food home from the market, says the War Food Administration. This is but one of the trifles which amount to imposing totals when saving ways are adopted by millions of families.
