Dr. Dies Trying To Fulfill Her Ambition

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 16—(AP) — A Negro woman doctor, Dr. Vivian Inez Douglas, 27, is dead after a lifetime of sacrifice for herself and her parents, without being able to practice the profession she worked so hard to reach.

Dr. Hutchins F. Inge said that she "had a burning desire to be a good doctor." He told how she worked as a receptionist in his office, poring over medical books when there was time, and studying at Newark University at night.

Her father, who had been a shipyard worker and truck driver, shoveled snow in the winter and did odd jobs in his spare time to help finance her education.

Dr. Douglas, who died Tuesday, was stricken with spinal meningitis last Spring just before she took her final examinations at Meharry University, Nashville, Tenn., she managed to finish her exams and received her medical degree in a hospital bed.

Her illness prevented her from being the first woman doctor at Lincoln Hospital, Durham, N. C., where she was to have served her internship. After a prolonged illness, she died in the Newark Eye and Ear Infirmary.

His father testified that his son, Joseph, took a screw driver and removed the lid from his trunk and stole the $41.86, which belonged to Mt. Carmel Holiness church. Rev. McNair stated upon the witness stand that he would not have prosecuted his son for stealing the money had it been his. He stated that he was the treasurer and the money belonged to the church, which the boy knew. Upon passing sentence, Judge Rives asked Joseph if he was in school or if he had a job, to which he replied in the negative. He said he had not worked or been in school this year. The judge stated that the best place for him would be the state highway for six months.

Sentenced For Throwing Boiling Lye Water On Hubby

Mrs. Lela Mae Woods, of 707 Garden street, East White Oak, was sentenced in Guilford County Superior Court by Judge J. H. Clement to 18 months in the county jail Tuesday of this week, for throwing a pan of boiling lye water on her husband, Sam Woods. Sam, upon the witness stand, stated that he didn't know why his wife threw the boiling lye water on him and refused to give full testimony as to the facts involved in the case. The police who made the arrest stated that Lela Mae boiled the water and lye for the purpose of killing Sam, and after she threw the mixture on him, peeling the skin off portions of his body and almost blinding him, she left the house and went to some of the neighbors and told them that she had fixed him, they had better go over and get him.

Lela Mae, a short, stout, chunky woman, testified upon the witness stand very freely in her speech that she and her husband had had fights every week of their marriage and she had gotten tired of it. Upon passing sentence, the sheriff stated that Lela Mae was a good cook and that he would like to have her there to serve her time at the Guilford County courthouse.
