A&T Alumni Accept $75,000 Goal In Annual Fund-Raising Campaign

A goal of $75,000 has been accepted by representatives of the 48 chapters of the A&T State University Alumni Association.

The money is to be raised in the alumni association's annual campaign which opens this week and extends through next March 31.

More than one hundred volunteer workers participated in a three-day Alumni Workshop in the University's Memorial Union last weekend. These persons heard a plea for support by Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, president of A&T.

Dr. Dowdy urged alumni support in a campaign to give $335,000 during the next five years. This is approximately one-third of the million-dollar goal set by the University.

Participants in the Workshop responded to Dr. Dowdy's plea by turning in personal pledges of more than $8,000 towards the 1968 effort.

The group, which included national officers and the president and fund-raising chairman from each of the alumni chapters, heard plans for the 1968 Annual Alumni Giving Program.

The Workshop, which had for its purposes to: provide volunteer workers with proper techniques and procedures in fund-raising; establish goals for achievement which would contribute to success in 1968 Alumni Giving, and to develop uniformity in methods, schedule and reporting, drew participants from every section of the nation.

The three-day event, held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 29 and 30 and October 1, featured as chief clinicians: W. Tom Bost, Jr., director of Alumni Annual Giving, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.; and Robert J. Sailstad, director of public relations and development, Davidson College, Davidson, N. C.

Other participants included: James T. Speight, Washington, D. C.; Sampson Buie, M. B. Graeber, and Henry Frye, all of Greensboro; and David W. Morehead, Greensboro, chairman of the 1968 Alumni Giving Program; and Eugene H. Preston, Washington, D. C., vice chairman.

Also appearing on the program were Dr. F. A. Williams and Ellis F. Corbett, director and associate director, respectively of the A&T Office of Planning and Development.

1,000 Jobs In Two Days

Any time a civic undertaking produces 1,000 jobs in two days for young people from low-income families, it rates a salute from leaders in Government and everyone else concerned with today's most urgent social and economic problems. In Texas, where many things are big, the City of Houston's recent Job Fair racked up a huge attendance of young people, and about 1,000 of them were successful in finding jobs with Houston employers. Some had been looking for jobs all Summer and said they doubted if they would have found one if it had not been for the Fair — shown in progress above at the Sam Houston Coliseum. Inset photo (bottom left) shows Ray Miles being interviewed by Charles W. Armstead, Houston District marketing representative of Humble Oil & Refining Company, which hired 65 young men and women, the largest number of jobs supplied by any one company. Another six applicants received jobs from the Esso Production Research Company, a subsidiary of Humble. Vice President Humphrey later called the Fair "a unique innovation in good business and good citizenship," and Secretary of Commerce Alexander B. Trowbridge said it offered "an excellent example of what forward-looking leadership, with loyal support of civic, industrial and other organizations, can do in encouraging and promoting a vital program from which everybody benefits." The sponsors included community-action and human-relations groups, unions, welfare agencies and other government officials and agencies, and the City of Houston, in cooperation with the city's major business organizations and scores of individual business firms.
