A&T Defeated By Norfolk State

PORTSMOUTH, Va. — A 19-yard field goal by Norfolk State end Kenny Edmonds late in the third quarter gave the Spartans a 17-14 win over A&T in a CIAA game here Saturday night.

The Aggies, who have yet to win a game this season, staged a gallant second quarter rally to tie the count at 14-14 before Edmonds' kick sealed their doom. It was the first time the Spartans had beaten A&T in six meetings.

After the field goal, the Aggies had sustained drives frustrated twice deep in Norfolk State Territory.

With 4:56 left in the game, sophomore quarterback Merl Code threw a 13-yard pass to Driskell on the Spartans' 19-yard line. Two plays later Code's pass to Daryle Cherry was intercepted by Jim Minor on A&T's nine-yard line to end the threat.

Fullback Larry James and quarterback Ike Fullard, both freshmen, engineered A&T's defeat. Fullard threw a 25-yard touchdown pass to end Rae Jarvis midway the first quarter and two minutes later, threw a 32-yard pass to end Bill Murphy.

James, a 235-pounder from Gainesville, Fla., picked up 109 yards in 17 carries.

Despite the loss, Code, starting his first game at quarterback for A&T, gave a good account of himself. He moved the ball club well in guiding the Aggies to their two second-quarter touchdowns.

Code connected on 12 of 28 passes for 101 yards and he led all Aggies ground-gainers with 53 yards in nine carries.

Norfolk State appeared headed for a rout when Aggie freshman Billy Gaines intercepted Fullard's pass on the Spartans' three-yard line and scampered across for the touchdown. Daryle Cherry's kick was wide and A&T trailed 14-6.

The Aggies' second touchdown climaxed a 41-yard drive late in the second period. A&T's Richard Armstrong gained two yards, then Code gained 23 to move the ball to Norfolk State's eight-yard line.

Armstrong and Code combined to move the ball to the two-yard line. Fred Robinson gained a yard when Code sneaked one yard for the touchdown. Code then circled his own right end for two extra points.

Mrs. Rosa T. Winchester To Receive Service Award

By Jan Christensen

Mrs. Rosa T. Winchester, Greensboro, is one of four North Carolina Extension home economists, to receive a distinguished service award at the National Association of Extension Home Economists annual meeting in Jackson, Miss., which begins Sunday, Oct. 22.

Mrs. Winchester, a member of the Guilford County Extension staff since 1938, will be recognized for her ability professionally and personally to work with agents and lay leaders of both the white and Negro races.

Under Mrs. Winchester's leadership an outstanding housing program was developed in the county. As one part of this program she helped needy families improve their sleeping conditions by promoting mattress making and bedding workshops in cooperation with the Welfare Department and other interested agencies.

A native of Robersonville, Mrs. Winchester attended Knoxville College, Knoxville, Tenn., and received her bachelors degree in home economics from Virginia State College, Ettrick, Va. She has done graduate work at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

Before joining the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, Mrs. Winchester taught home economics in Manassas, Va., and Mount Olive, N. C.

According to Dr. Eloise Cofer, assistant state Extension director, North Carolina State University, "Mrs. Winchester has been an inspired leader in the Guilford County Extension program and in the professional Extension home economics organizations of the state."

Distinguished service awards are made each year to agents who have worked in Extension at least 10 years and who have made an outstanding contribution to their profession.

Others being recognized this year are Mrs. Elaine N. Blake, Columbus County; Mrs. Nancy I. Myers, Iredell County; and Mrs. Iberia R. Tunnell, Hyde County.

New Exams Announced By U. S. Civil Service

The U. S. Civil Service Commission has announced a new examination for filling positions of Accountants, Auditors, and Internal Revenue Agents in the major cities and overseas. Some positions are in Greensboro. There is an anticipated need for more than 3,500 new people with college degrees or equivalent experience in these positions this next year.

The Commission emphasized that these are entry-level positions in which appointees can get the training and experience necessary for professional development and progress to higher level responsibilities. Premium salaries start at $6,387 and $7,303 per year, and agencies may pay travel costs and moving expenses for appointees and their immediate families to the first post of duty.

Most jobs are with the Internal Revenue Service, the General Accounting Office, and the Department of Defense, but

LDF Asks Court of Appeals To Act In Behalf Of Youth Interrogated By Ga. Police

Retarded Lad Fearful; Parents Not Advised LDF Asserts

ATLANTA — NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc. (LDF)* attorneys today asked a judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals here to release a 12-year-old mentally retarded youth, jailed on charge of arson, after four hours of police interrogation—without knowledge of his parents or legal counsel.

The attorneys also asked for a new trial, in event the Court elects not to release the youth from custody of the Georgia Division for Children and Youth.

LDF attorneys told Judge Elbert P. Tuttle that Charles E. Brown was removed from Blakeney Elementary School in Waynesboro, Ga. by sheriff's officers, who had been informed that the youth was seen leaving a school where fire subsequently broke out.

"During the hours of 11 a.m. to approximately 3 p.m. he was driven to various locations in and around Waynesboro, including some unpopulated areas, where fires had been set," the lawyers said.

He was interrogated during the trip by officers whose guns were visible to the youth, the LDF asserted.

"The transcript of the hearing in the Burke County Juvenile Court," the LDF told the court, "reveals that Charles Brown is a mentally retarded youth, that police made no attempt to locate his parents during this period and that Brown was afraid of the officers."

The youth's attorney "objected to the introduction of the 'confession' on the grounds that a mentally retarded 12-year-old boy is not capable of waiving his Fifth and Sixth Amendment rights."

However, the trial judge permitted the evidence to be introduced.

LDF attorneys also told the Court that Georgia's Juvenile Act violates the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment on grounds of its vagueness.

The Georgia law, the LDF maintains, creates three distinct difficulties:

- It vests an unduly broad discretion in the juvenile court concerning adjudication of delinquency — because delinquency is not defined nor are adequate determining standards given to judges;
- Judges are allowed to act in an equally arbitrary manner at the decision phase of a juvenile trial;
- The law fails to define the conduct which it prohibits.

The LDF also argues that neither Brown nor his parents "have ever been provided with satisfactory notice of the charges."

LDF attorneys handling the case are Director-Counsel Jack Greenberg, Michael Meltsner and James Finney of New York City; and, Attorney John H. Ruffin of Augusta.

(* The NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc. (LDF) is a separate, distinct and different organization from the NAACP. Its correct designation is: NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc., which is frequently shortened to LDF.

Dr. Dowdy Speaks At Convocation

"One of the duties of the university community is to find out how truth can help man solve his ultimate dreams," said Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, president of A&T State University, last week at A&T's Fall Semester Convocation.

"Life ought not to be just a day to day existence," said Dr. Dowdy. "Life is to be lived with purpose which outreaches man. It ought to enhance life for each individual."

Dr. Dowdy urged the students to be consistent in their philosophies. "The Hippies' philosophy," he said, "is not to try to change society, but to withdraw from society. It seems to me that if they meant well, they would make an effort to improve on what they don't like. They would go on an island and start a new society."

"The purpose of college experience," said Dr. Dowdy, "is to teach students how to live with others in a complex society. There is more to college than just scholarship. We must have commitment, dedication and understanding of other human beings."

Others taking part in the program were Marsh Campbell, president of the Student Government; Miss Pat Mobley, "Miss A&T"; and the Rev. Cleo McCoy, director of religious activities. Music was furnished by the choir and concert band.
