Thanksgiving Day Football Game A & T Aggies vs N. C. Eagles

By Richard Moore

Although the current season has been a frustrating one for both A&T and North Carolina College, an explosive football game is expected when the two arch rivals meet here Thanksgiving Day.

"We know that records go out the window when these two teams meet," said Aggie head coach Bert Piggott. "There are no favorites in this game."

With a 2-5-1 record, A&T holds a slight edge over the Eagles who will come into the game with a 1-6-1 record.

A record crowd is expected to be on hand for the 37th game between the two CIAA foes. The Aggies will be trying to extend the 18-15 margin they hold in the series. Three of the games have ended in a tie.

The Aggies this season were "late bloomers", having started without an experienced quarterback and with freshmen in several key slots.

A&T's offense did jell at mid-season and the Aggies have a capable backfield in quarterback Merl Code, halfbacks Willie Pearson and Aaron Patterson, and fullback Richard Armstrong.

In upsetting Virginia State last week, the Aggies showed they have a lot of potential. Defensively, A&T will be led by Elvin Bethea, Henry Frye, Dennis Homesley, Daryle Cherry and Lorenzo Pearson.

The Eagles, coached by James Stevens, have three very talented quarterbacks in sophomore Herman Matthews, junior Terry

Cole and senior Walt Funderburk.

Matthews is an excellent passer and runner who has sparked in North Carolina's attack all season. Matthews' favorite targets are sophomore end Julian Martin and Gilbert Smith. Other veteran Eagle players are fullback Roger Foust and Gilbert Smith, Willie Ray Taylor and Thurman Jones.

A&T and North Carolina were both beaten by Morgan State, Maryland State. The Aggies tied Johnson C. Smith, a team that beat the Eagles and A&T downed Virginia State, a team that deadlocked with the Eagles.

Making their final appearance for A&T will be seniors Henry Hipps, Homesley, Carmie Elmore, Bethea, Tom Alston and Willie Vaughn.

Smith Named Bursar At A&T State University

Jonah Smith, 35, former administrator of Community Hospital, Martinsville, Va., has been appointed bursar at A&T State University.

A native of Smithfield, N. C., Smith graduated from A&L in 1957 with a degree in business administration. He served for two years in the U.S. Army.

Smith was administrator of Good Samaritan Waverly Hospital, Columbia, S. C., for six years and assistant administrator at Greensboro's L. Richardson Memorial Hospital for a year and a half.

He is married to the former Miss Alstynne Foreman of Aiken, S. C. The Smiths have two sons. Jonah Jr., 4, and Gregory, 20 months old.

According to Dr. Thomas B. Reid, Jr., Jacksonville, President of the North Carolina Society, "Our Easter Seal Society is pleased to have a person with the experience and background that Paul Murray has to continue our efforts on behalf of crippled children and adults."

Negro Civil Rights Administrator Opposes Separatism

Durham, N. C. — A highly-placed Federal civil rights official Thursday urged Negro students to prepare for life in an integrated society, rather than joining a "separatist" movement.

Harold B. Williams, assistant director of the Office for Civil Rights of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, said, "We are looking for progress, not retreat. I hope that as you decide which way to go next, you will elect to move forward among the avenues of education, economics, and politics as a contributing part of society.

"The best way to influence decisions that affect your lives is to rise to the level at which decisions are made," the Negro civil rights officer said.

Williams told his audience of high school teachers and students attending the annual Resource-Use Conference at North Carolina College, "In my opinion, the Negro youth who prepares himself only for life in a
