James Reeves Appointed Assistant Dean of Students at University of Minnesota at Minneapolis

James H. Reeves, associate director of the Student Activities Bureau (SAB) since 1961, was named assistant dean of students Friday by the Board of Regents.

The appointment is effective immediately. His salary will be $17,200.

Reeves' appointment brings the total of top administrative personnel in the dean's office to four, including Dean E. G. Williamson, Associate Dean Martin L. Snoke, and Assistant Dean Mabelle G. McCullough.

Snoke said Reeves had been offered a top post in dean of students work at an eastern school but the University wanted to keep him here.

In addition, Snoke said, another assistant in the Dean of Students Office was needed to help handle certain problems on the St. Paul campus and housing problems on the west bank.

He added that he does not yet know who in the office will handle the specific problem areas.

The Dean's office, Snoke said, has considered hiring an additional assistant for several years. The office has been in contact with Reeves about the job for the past three months, Snoke said.

No replacement has been named for Reeves at SAB.

Reeves came to the University in 1955 as the principal student personnel worker. In that capacity he worked with the All-University Congress, which later became the Minnesota Student Association, and with the Senate Committee on Student Affairs. He has also worked closely with campus political groups.

Before coming to the University, Reeves was assistant to the Dean of Students at UCLA, where he received his Ed.D. He received his B.A. from North

Robbers Rampage Greensboro

CIAA Tournament brought many thieves and robbers to town. The ABC store on East Market St. was robbed on Friday night, March 1, 1968. A bus was stolen from one of the motels in proximity of the Greensboro Coliseum to provide transportation to the campus. The last robbery came to the business office at Greensboro Morningside Homes project on Tuesday.

Burglars and robbers netted over $30,000 at the expense of the Durham Housing Authority and Greensboro's Morningside Homes project Tuesday.

In Durham, burglars entered the Housing Authority office some time early Tuesday morning and stole a safe containing 26,975, police reported.

In Greensboro, two armed men robbed the Morningside Homes business office of more than $3,300 in the presence of seven persons who were threatened at gunpoint.

Police said the burglars entered the Durham Housing Authority office by prying open a window. They then hauled a small safe away by using a hand cart for a short distance, then put it in a car or truck, police said.

The loss was severe, executive housing director Carvie Oldham said, because the money was not covered by insurance. Oldham said the insuring firm cancelled its coverage Feb. 8 because of a series of breakins at Housing Authority offices.

In Greensboro, police said two Negro men entered the Morningside Homes business office, of 1843 Everett St., through a rear door shortly after 5 p. m. The men played ping pong for a few minutes, police said, then walked into the main office.

Cleod Shavers, who was inside the main office, was told to lie down on the floor and not move. One of the robbers held a gun to Shavers' head and threatened to kill him if he moved while the other robber went into a nearby room where the office's employees were holding a meeting.

Mrs. Ivey Williamson, office manager, said she and five other employees were told to go into the room where Shavers was being held and to sit down on the floor.

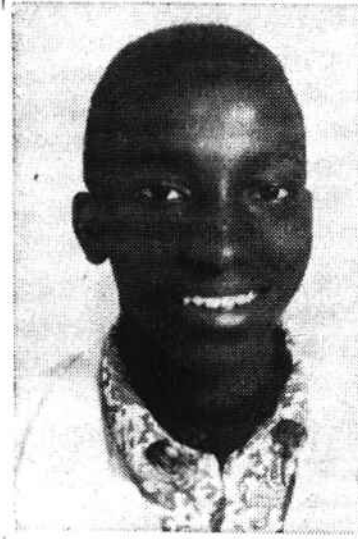

One of the robbers told the victims, "If any of you make a sound or try to leave I'll blow your heads off."

Then the robber asked one of the women to go into another room where a safe was located. He held a gun at her head and told her to open it.

When she opened the safe, the robber pulled the money out and stuffed it in his pockets. After again threatening the people inside the office, the two
