Mother Of Nine Cited In Annual A & T Program

By Ellis F. Corbett

A hard working Greensboro mother of nine, who never finished high school herself, but who has been an inspiration for her children, was honored last Sunday as the A&T State University—"Mother of the Year".

Mrs. Mary Womack, wife of Daniel Womack, has already seen two of her sons and a daughter graduated from college. Two other sons are enrolled at A&T and another son is scheduled to enter the University next September.

Mrs. Womack had her day at A&T's annual Mother's Day celebration. At a convocation in Moore Gym, Mrs. Womack was presented by Mrs. Lewis C. Dowdy, wife of the A&T president.

She was presented a certificate by Marsh C. Campbell, president of the Student Government Association and a gift from the student body by Miss Patricia Mobley, "Miss A&T" for the current year.

On hand for the occasion were seven of Mrs. Womack's children. These included: Mrs. Jessie Cardwell of Greensboro, a graduate of Bennett College; Richard, a senior in political science and Raymond, sophomore in mechanical engineering, both at A&T; Ernest, a senior at Dudley High School here; Gloria, a junior at Dudley; Carolyn, an eighth grader at Lindley Junior High; and Debra, a fourth grader at Lindley.

Two other sons, both A&T graduates are Major Daniel Womack with the U. S. Army in South America; and James L. Womack, with the Peace Corps in Liberia.

Mrs. Womack was described as an active worker in civic affairs as a member of the Warren Street Community Club, and with several agencies at AME Church of which she is a member.

Speaker at the worship services was Dr. Charles S. Spivey, Jr., executive director of the Department of Social Justice, National Council of Churches of Christ, New York City.

Scoring those persons who had created "libel and scandal which infers that black mothers are lazy, unclean and immoral and sole dependents on relief benefits," he said. "These are symptoms of the poverty stricken, those who have been debased by poverty, ignorance and discrimination. These are not racial symptoms."

He said these characteristics of the poor become bad, only when they are ascribed to black people.

The Mother's Day program also included the presentation of the Clifton O. Howell marksmanship award to James Keith, a member of the Army ROTC Rifle Team.

Letter To The Editor

523 Julian Street
Greensboro, N. C.
May 15, 1968

To: The Editor and Publisher and Staff of Future Outlook
Words cannot express how surprised and honored I was to be named the "Mother of the Year" for 1968 in your newspaper. It is a tribute that I shall always cherish.

I must say, however, that I do feel that I have done very little. I have only done what any parent should do for his offspring. It has been because of that fine spirit of cooperation of my husband and my children that I have come this far. Not to say the least, God has certainly been our anchor and shelter in time of storm.

A million thanks, again, to you and your staff.

Best wishes for more and more success in your newspaper career.

Sincerely yours,
(Mrs.) Rosetta B. Florence
