Mehraban Dashtaki, right, who came to this country almost penniless a few years ago, receives congratulations from Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, president of A&T State University, after Dashtaki received his bachelor of science degree at the University during the June graduation. He hopes to obtain job or pursue graduate studies.

Looking on is Miss Shirley Smith, "Miss A&T," of Greensboro.

Mehraban Dashtaki Graduates At A&T State University In June 1968

By Richard Moore

When Mehraban Dashtaki got off the boat in New York City a few years ago and saw that the sky in America is blue, he was disappointed.

As a poor lad in rural Iran, he had gathered from the American movies shown in his country that even the skies here were somehow paved with gold.

It was those days and nights of dreaming about "coming to America" that have helped Dashtaki to conquer insurmountable obstacles, almost without a dime.

Dashtaki was all smiles when he received his bachelor of science degree at A&T State University last Sunday. It meant that he was another step nearer to completing the dream of sending for his parents to let them "see this beautiful land."

"It was those movies that got me interested in coming here," said Dashtaki. "I just kept on saying that I was going to America."

He wasn't even discouraged when members of his family told him that "you have to have money to live there," or "you have to know the language."

Dashtaki, the son of a struggling tenant farmer, had neither money nor knowledge of English, only this big dream.

A chance meeting with an American tourist gave him his chance. In this garage where he worked for $75 per month, the stranger walked one day.

"I fixed his car," said Dashtaki, "and he asked me what I wanted to do in life?" When I told him about my dream, he mentioned a friend in Washington, D. C. who would let me live with them if I would help them to take care of the house.

When the American's friend agreed to take him, Dashtaki was on his way. The $250 he had saved in three years of hard work would pay for his passage.

Conquering the language barrier was something else. "I was miserable, at first," he said. "I could only say, 'hello' and 'how are you'. I used to just go to my room and cry, but the people in Washington were kind."

The friend, an advertising executive, paid Dashtaki's tuition to the Institute of Modern Languages. In seven months he was doing fine.
