AGGIE STAR LLOYD LIGHTFOOT WAITING TO INK BASEBALL PACT

A & T baseball star Lloyd Lightfoot learned the hard way that he has been drafted by the Baltimore Orioles. He read about it in Sporting News nearly two weeks after he had been drafted.

"I had been contacted by Baltimore officials before the draft" said Lightfoot. "They just told me they were interested in me. I haven't heard from them since."

The Orioles drafted Lightfoot in the 10th round as a shortstop. They indicated that he would go to Stockton, Calif. in the Class A League.

A native of Buffalo, New York, Lightfoot was a baseball and basketball star at Kensington High School.

He was a sparkplug for the Aggies the past four seasons. Last summer, Lightfoot became the first Negro to participate in the Shenandoah Valley League, composed mostly of college stars.

AGGIES RESUME GRID SERIES WITH STRONG S.C. STATE

A football rivalry dating back to 1924 will be resumed next fall when A&T meets South Carolina State in an inter-sectional game here. The two teams which have not met since 1960, will open the Aggies' schedule in Memorial Stadium, Sept. 28, at 8 p. m.

A&T's game with the Bulldogs will replace the Aggies' encounter with Tennessee State. It is the only change in the A&T schedule.

The Aggies have CIAA games scheduled with Johnson C. Smith, Norfolk State, Maryland State, Winston-Salem State, Morgan State, Virginia State and North Carolina College.

In their only other non-conference game, the Aggies will face tough Florida A&M in Tallahassee on Nov. 9.

Guiding A&T for the first time next season will be head coach Hornsby Howell, who was elected to the post last March.

He led the league in home-runs and was named its "Most Valuable Player". He was described by a sportswriter at that time as "displaying great range in the field and having a bazooka for an arm."

"I think that I can make the big leagues," said Lightfoot, who is 6-2 and weighs 180. "I want to work on my speed."

Lightfoot is now enrolled in summer school at A&T trying to complete the few credits he needs to earn his bachelor's degree.

"If the club signs me this summer," he said, "I will go with the team to get the experience. Then I hope to come back to college to pick up my degree."

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION

Recent changes in the GI home loan program should make it easier for thousands of unmarried widows to get GI home loans, W. R. Phillips, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Winston-Salem announced today.

Basic eligibility requirements are that the widow's husband either died on active duty or from a service-connected disability, Phillips said, and the veteran's service was during World War II or after June 27, 1950.

A new law permits the VA to guarantee home loans up to $12,500 of the loan amount but not more than 60 per cent of the loan, Phillips added.

The higher ceiling on GI loan interest rates that went into effect recently should help these widows to get a GI loan from a commercial lending institution, he said.

Many eligible widows had husbands who served in World War II; under current legislation, they still have more than two years to obtain a GI loan—until July 25 1970.

Entitlement for qualified widows of men who served in the Korean Conflict is not scheduled to expire until January 31, 1975.

Widows whose spouses served during the Viet Nam era — or any time after January 31, 1955 — will have their eligibility expire:

- (a) 20 years from the date of the veteran's death in service,
- (b) 20 years from the date of the veteran's discharge, or
- (c) March 3, 1976 — whichever is later.

Phillips said that veterans' widows who think they qualify for GI loans may obtain further information by writing to the Veterans Administration Regional Office at Winston-Salem, N. C.
