Veterans' Corner

(Editor's Note: Below are authoritative answers by the Veterans Administration to some of the many current questions from former servicemen and their families. Further information on veterans benefits may be obtained at any VA office.)

Q—When I get out of service I'll still have to finish high school. Would it be smart for me not to use my G. I. Bill education and training entitlement while completing high school so that I can have all of it available for college?

A—There is no need to "save" your entitlement for college. Last year Congress passed a law permitting veterans to receive an educational assistance allowance ($130 a month for a single veteran in full-time training) from the Veterans Administration while completing high school. This allowance will not be charged against your full entitlement to college level training under the G. I. Bill.

Q—Can I buy a particular house I would like under the G. I. loan program even though the seller insists on getting more than the VA appraisal price?

A—Yes, you may, provided that you are willing to pay in cash the difference between the amount on the Veterans Administration Certificate of Appraisal and the actual selling price of the house.

Q—I would like very much to serve as a volunteer in a VA hospital but my free time is limited to a couple of hours during the middle of the day. Is there a need for volunteer help during these odd hours?

A—There certainly is. The Veterans Administration Voluntary Service can use help just about any hour of the day, any day of the week, generally between 9:00 a. m. and 9:00 p. m. There are all kinds of jobs to be done. Check with your local VA hospital. Your interest and assistance will be most appreciated.

John W. Dillard Twice Honored By Madison-Mayodan Schools

Madison, N. C.—John W. Dillard, veteran school principal here, has been honored twice this summer by the Madison-Mayodan City School Board.

A brand new elementary school, now under construction and to be ready for occupancy in early October, has been named in his honor, the John W. Dillard Elementary School. The new plant, to be fully integrated, is located immediately adjacent to the Madison-Mayodan High School here.

The announcement was made by V. Mayo Bundy, superintendent of the Madison-Mayodan City Schools.

The building, considered one of the most modern in the State, contains 12 classrooms. An outstanding feature is a circular facility of six classrooms for the primary department which permits usage of rooms from one to all six.

Earlier this summer, Dillard, who had served as principal of the all-Negro Charles Drew High School since 1942, was named principal of the newly created junior high school to open in September. The school will serve as the lone institution for junior high pupils in Madison.

A native of Greensboro, N. C., Dillard is a graduate of A&T State University and holds the M.A. degree from Ohio State University. He is married to the former Miss Mabel M. Mayle of Belpre, Ohio. The couple has a daughter.
