PLANS FOR PROGRESS FORCE VISITS BENNETT COLLEGE

A Plans for Progress task force team of five "living witnesses" spent three two days at Bennett College recently.

Formed about six years ago during the Kennedy-Johnson Administration, Plans for Progress task force members, on leave from their regular jobs, visit black college campuses indoctrinating students on the many opportunities that minority group members now have with "big-business."

According to Mrs. Louise Prothro, who headed the task force, the tag "living witnesses" was one used by former vice-president Hubert Humphrey because it gave the students an opportunity to see for themselves other black people with backgrounds much like their own who "have made it."

A former biology teacher,

Mrs. Prothro spent 13 years on the public relations staff of Pet Milk Co., in St. Louis, Mo., and now works for Farley Manning and Associates, a New York based public relations firm.

Others on the task force were Jacqueline Pinckney, who heads the publications staff for General Electric Corp., Philadelphia; Lenora Moragne product publicist, General Foods Corp., White Plains, N. Y., DeVera Edwards, beauty consultant, Pharmaco Laboratories, Kenilworth, N. J., and Maxine Grady, ticket agent, American Airlines, Memphis, Tenn.

On a typical visit, the task force visits classrooms and dormitories, lunches with administrative and student leaders, and is available for consultation and discussion.
