250 Years of Black History Subject of Two-Week Institute

Durham, N. C. — Black men first arrived on these shores 350 years ago.

In view of the long history of the presence of the black man in North America, one might think a two-week institute for college teachers which began recently on the North Carolina Central University campus is superfluous.

But among the 45 participants in the Summer Institute for the Teaching of Afro-American History for College Teachers are several who can legitimately be described as authorities on American history.

These men and women have spent seven or more years learning American history, yet they know little or nothing about Afro-American history — the history of the black man in the United States.

Supported by the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Ford Foundation, the institute will concentrate on the theme, "The Black Experience as a Key to Interpreting American History."

Dr. James H. Brewer of NCCU and Dr. Syd Nathan of Duke University, co-directors of the institute, are aware that the two weeks of lectures and seminars will not begin to cover the field. They hope, however, to offer an overview of the subject sufficient to provide a framework for further study.

Other goals include providing the necessary bibliographical information to enable the attendants to continue study, an examination of the problems and possibilities of teaching Afro-American history, and stimulation of appreciation for Afro-American history.

Fourteen similar institutes are being conducted this summer with support from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Ford Foundation.

Institute sizes range from 15 who are studying "Negro Influences in American Culture" at the University of Arizona to 125 studying "The Image of the Negro in American Films" at

Evidence Studied

Police Det. Capt. W. H. Jackson left this week for the FBI laboratory in Washington with "additional physical evidence" in the Angelo Pennisi murder investigation.

The nature of the evidence apparently gathered recently was not revealed by investigators. Police have not yet received official results on evidence submitted for analysis soon after Pennisi's body was found in Lake Gaston.

Lt. Col. Walter Burch said that a plea in Saturday's Record asking citizens to report certain events which allegedly occurred June 15 in the Bessemer section has "gotten results."

MURDER CHARGE

A 19-year-old Greensboro youth was fatally wounded Sunday night at Southgate Shopping Center. After questioning, police charged an 18-year-old city resident with murder.

Being held in the death of Sherwin Winston of Holts Chapel Road is Phillip McLean, a resident of 328 E. Lee St. Preliminary hearing will be later this week in district court.

According to police, Winston was taken by car about 11 p.m. from the center on Asheboro St. to L. Richardson Hospital where he died while undergoing emergency treatment.

Officers said the victim sustained a single wound in the right side of the chest. A .22 caliber pistol was taken from McLean, they reported.

Witnesses said they heard a noise like a firecracker and saw several persons place Winston in a car driven by a youth identified as Michael Williams and occupied by McLean.

Detectives interviewed McLean at the hospital and early this morning signed a warrant charging him with murder. He is being held without bond in city jail.

Police indicated McLean and Winston were standing behind a car parked near the center of the lot not far from an ABC outlet.

FINAL RITES FOR BROTHER OF MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR.

Atlanta, Ga. (AP) — Funeral services will be held Thursday for the Rev. A. D. Williams King, only brother of slain civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

The Rev. King's body was found Monday in the swimming pool of his Atlanta home. He apparently drowned during a late night swim, an associate said. Police found no evidence of foul play.

His funeral will be a tragic replay of events 15 months ago for the parents and other relatives and co-workers in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference SCLC. The funeral will be at Ebenezer Baptist Church, where he followed his brother as co-pastor with their father last year after Martin King's assassination.

The brother's funeral was at Ebenezer. Eulogies were given by SCLC president the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy and Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president emeritus of Morehouse College. Both will speak at A. D. King's funeral.

Burial will be in South View Cemetery, in the family plot, near the eternal flame-marked marble tomb of Martin Luther King Jr.

A Matter Of Replies

Neil Armstrong has complicated life for Neil Armstrong but he takes it good-naturedly — even enjoys it a bit.

"Mostly it's kept me busy trying to think up replies," said Neil Armstrong, director of the summer school at A&T University, who is reminded a dozen times a day his name is the same as the man on the moon.

"Already this morning, a number of people have told me they thought I was on the moon or asked me how I got back so fast," he said.

Since Astronaut Armstrong's name first began to make news, friends have telephoned or stopped Greensboro's Armstrong to take note of the like names.

"I think, however, the fact of the names has caused me to have a greater interest in this shot and its welfare," he said. "Actually, my name is J. Neil and his is Neil A. but most people
