Ambassador To The United States

E. M. Debrah, Ambassador to the United States from Ghana, proved a very popular visitor during a visit to Bennett College last week. The ambassador is shown here during a question and answer session with students and college officials.

GHANA AMBASSADOR SAYS: "EDUCATION MEANS SERVICE"

What is the purpose of an education? It is to prepare one to compete and make a living in today's complex society? Not so says E. M. Debrah, Ambassador to the United States from Ghana.

"The challenge of Today's youth," Mr. Debrah said in a speech at Bennett College last week, "is to accept the fact that their education is intended to prepare them to be a part of the society from which they originate; and to work diligently towards removing its misery and its handicaps."

Mr. Debrah was in Greensboro as the second Bennett College Forum speaker of the year. "We must reject any false education," he said, "which gives us a feeling of superiority over others. We must, on the other hand, imbibe that system which gives us the inner conviction that life without service has no meaning; and as long as poverty, oppression, illiteracy, ghetto conditions, despair, inferiority complex and hunger exists in our community, our education has served no purpose."

A quotation from Seneca is quite convincing, "Even if others hold the front hoe and your lot his placed you among those on the third line, from where you are, do service with your voice, encouragement, example and spirit. Even though a man's hands are cut off he finds he can do something for his side in

Woman's Chances of Collecting Social Security Better Than Man's

"If you're a woman, your chances of collecting social security benefits are better than those of your husband or your brother," according to Charles H. Myers, district manager of social security in Greensboro.

"Fifty-one percent of our beneficiaries are adult women," said Myers, "while only 34 percent are adult men. In addition, he noted, it was women who manage most of the benefits paid to the 15 percent of social security beneficiaries who are children."

"A woman who works builds valuable retirement and disability protection for herself and her dependents," Myers pointed out. And payments are payable to her children in the event of her death just as in the case of men. A woman who has not worked outside her home may qualify for social security benefits on her husband's record. "You might say," Myers said, "that the social security law recognizes that being a housewife and mother is a special career."

"Some of the ways you can qualify for social security payments as a woman are:

- (1) As a wife, when your husband is getting social security benefits and you are 62 or older, or have children under 18, or

THANKS TO YOU

Thanks to the youth who live in the Warren Housing Project. A group of teenagers organized themselves in groups and brought candy, apples, oranges, and nuts which they bagged and carried to all of the shut-ins in the hospitals and convalescence homes all day Tuesday before Christmas.

To the many who do not believe in Santa Claus, if you had seen this group you would have seen Santa in action. Here-before, the teenagers living in the housing project would have looked for some charitable organization to give them their Christmas, but this little group from the Warren Housing Project changed the old course. They started to find that forgotten group, the shut-in, the chronic ill, the old age, and those who are unable physically to find Christmas for themselves.

These youths should be given a word of thanks for finding the shut-in to give them the enjoyment that they are able to receive. The staff of the Future Outlook sends thanks to you and others who share their faithfulness in running such voluntary service during this Christmas season.

The VA says the current 335,351 enrollment in institutions of higher learning is a 28 per cent increase over the 261,347 in training in college at the end of October 1968.
