A&T, CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PLAN UNIQUE URBAN AFFAIRS CONF.

An urban affairs conference, scheduled for March 18-20 at A&T State University, is expected to attract several hundred students, businessmen and other interested citizens.

Completely organized by students of the University's Department of Sociology and Social Service, and the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce, the conference will especially focus on problems of the poor.

"We are not primarily concerned with the economical gaps that exist between the rich and poor," said James T. Isler, chairman of the program. "We also hope this conference will address itself to the gaps that exist because of the lack of an influential audience for the poor."

"It is believed," added Isler, "that if the powers to be would listen, talk and plan with the poor, the greatest gap would be bridged."

The opening sessions of the conference will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Moore Gym. The conference keynoter will be Robert Blackwell, first black mayor of Highland Park, Mich.

Most of Thursday morning and afternoon will be devoted to panel sessions on housing, employment, police and community relations, political problems and city government, recreation and loneliness and alienation in urban life.

At a luncheon meeting Thursday in the Memorial Student Union, Dr. Albert Fein, director of urban affairs at Long Island University, will address the group.

At a 3 p.m. session in the Memorial Union ballroom, the speaker will be Dr. George Nash, director of the Bureau of Applied Research at Columbia University.

Panel sessions Friday morning will be concerned with human relations problems, student protest movements and the city, the courts and redevelopment and Model Cities programs.

The closing session at 11 a.m. Friday in Moore Gym will feature an address by Charlotte publisher and author Harry Golden.

"No final solutions will be effectuated at the conference," said Isler, "but we hope that some changes in modes of thinking and attitudes will be achieved."

CHRYSLER CORPORATION TRAINING DISADVANTAGED

Detroit — The 1,428 disadvantaged persons now being trained by Chrysler Corporation at locations across the country have been reassured that they were never in any danger of being dropped from the training programs.

Donald Maxwell, manager of technical education for the corporation, said the trainees, who are being trained under a National Alliance of Businessmen (NAB) Job Opportunities in the Business Sector (JOBS) contract with the U. S. Department of Labor, felt after reading some accounts of the cancellation of a $13.8 million contract, that they were to be dropped.

"We called a meeting of the trainees to explain that the cancellation of the contract had no effect on their status or training," Maxwell said.

Termination of the $13.8 million contract, he said, was a technical necessity to keep the federal funds available for future JOBS training contracts and had no bearing on the programs now being conducted.

Chrysler Corporation has revealed proposals for three additional JOBS training contracts with the U. S. Department of Labor.

As revealed by Wayne E. Grimm, director of the Chrysler Institute, the additional manpower training proposals call for the upgrading of disadvantaged persons now on the corporation's payroll; the upgrading of 1,000 persons in the mechanics training program; and the training of 1,000 additional mechanics, parts clerks, auto body repairmen and other service people for dealerships across the country.

The additional contract proposals are in addition to the $2.9 million contract for training 1,000 mechanics, auto body repairmen, parts clerks and other service personnel in dealerships signed earlier this week by Chrysler and the Department of Labor.

"We believe these proposals enable us to redirect our efforts to other areas that aid in fulfilling our corporate commitment to increase job opportunities for disadvantaged persons," Grimm said.

EXHIBIT BY 15 BLACK WOMEN BEING SHOWN IN A&T GALLERY

A major art exhibition entitled "Fifteen Afro-American Women" is being presented in the Taylor Art Gallery of A&T State University through March 30.

A special opening reception was held for the public from 2-5 p.m. last Sunday in the gallery, located in F. D. Bluford Library.

The exhibit by nationally-known black women has been assembled by Mr. Eva Hamlin Miller, associate professor of art at A&T.

"These black women artists, though concerned," said Mrs. Miller, "do not necessarily use the Afro-American situation as subject matter. They do hope to focus the public's attention on a few of the many women artists in the black national community."

For her collection, Mrs. Miller has selected works by herself, Betty Blayton, Lorraine Bolton, Edith Brown, Margaret Borroughs, Iris Crump, Inge Hardinson, Lois Mailour Jones, Norma Morgan, Delilah Pierce, Faith Ringgold, Luceil Roberts, Ann Tanksley, Alma Thomas and Barbara Zuber.

The Taylor Gallery is open from Monday to Saturday from 2-5 p.m. The works will also be shown by appointment.

GROOMES BEMOANS PITCHING WOES; AGGIES APPEAR STRONG ON DEFENSE

Stallworth is good enough to be considered a real major league prospect."

A&T will open its season at the annual Florida A&M Baseball Carnival in Tallahassee March 12-14. It's like spring training for the Aggies, who go South to flex their muscles for the grueling CIAA campaign that begins against Hampton Institute in Greensboro March 21.

Besides Stallworth, Groomes will depend on senior Dave Smith, sophomore Tyrone Bolden, and Greg Simmons and freshman Mike Conyers and Eddie Jordan for pitching.

Defensively, Groomes figures the Aggies will be strong again.

Returning starters for A&T include second baseman Steve Parson of Buffalo, N. Y., another All-CIAA performer; shortstop George Lima; catcher Charles Middleton; third baseman Bernard Chambers and outfielders Johnny Thompson, Deny Smith and Larry Francis.

Middleton, an Aggie football star, pounded the ball at a .396 clip last season and Parson hit .356, Thompson .318 and Smith .314.

"We'll be average in hitting," said Groomes, "and we'll have to get some games under our belt. I won't make any predictions about winning a championship, but I will say that we would be in the running for the Southern Division title."
