Distinguished Faculty Chair To Be Established At A & T State U

A distinguished faculty chair in Urban Affairs is to be established beginning next year at A&T State University.

The chair, to be supported by the A&T University-Industry Committee of the National Alliance of Business Men, was announced Wednesday by James E. Townsend, corporate representative of Dow Chemical Company, Midland, Mich., and outgoing chairman of the AT Committee. His company is one of 24 major national industries which are participating members of the committee.

The announcement was made immediately prior to the opening session of the first annual Collegiate and Community Conference on Urban Affairs, held at A&T for three days last week.

The project becomes the first faculty chair for A&T University in its long history, and is one of the very few in the field in the nation.

Dr. L. C. Dowdy, president of the University, said:

"The establishment of a faculty chair in the field of Urban Affairs adds thrust to programs in operation at the University which prepare our graduates for roles of leadership in solving the problems which beset America's burgeoning cities.

"We, at A&T, welcome, both the challenge and opportunity provided in this added support,

BLACK BEAUTY EXPERT WITH JUDO BELT TO HIGHLIGHT SPRING CONSUMER CONFAB AT A&T

You wouldn't expect the typical male beauty expert to hold a black belt in judo, that is, unless he is the nationally-known Mr. Odis.

Odis will join North Carolina Attorney General Robert Morgan and black beauty expert Elsie Archer as featured speakers for the annual Spring Weekend at A&T State University, April 9-11.

"The Consumer Wants to Know" is the theme of the conference, sponsored by the A&T Department of Home Economics.

The sessions will seek to supply basic consumer information in the areas of credit, truth in advertisements, savings and investments.

Mr. Odis, who still spends most of his spare time teaching judo and demonstrating the art of self-defense to young people, will discuss "Your Best Dressed Face" at 9 a. m. workshop in Benbow Hall, Saturday, April 11.

"I watch faces," said Mr. Odis. "I tell women about certain products and then show them how to apply cosmetics properly. Their reaction is my greatest reward."

Mr. Odis, who has studied at the University of Maryland and Indiana University, recently completed a study of black beauty.

Attorney General Morgan has been quite concerned with consumer safeguards since assuming office last year.

He will address the opening session of the conference April 9, at 1:30 p. m. on "The Consumer Outlook for the 1970s."

A fashion show by McCall's Pattern Company will be held Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in Harrison Auditorium, followed by a talk on "Comparative Shopping Guides in Clothing" by Mrs. Archer.

Speakers on Friday will include J. S. Stewart, president of Mutual Savings and Loan Association, Durham; A. H. Kerr, consumer relations manager for North Carolina National Bank and Marvin Sykes, director of the Greensboro Better Business Bureau.

A&T students will discuss career opportunities for home economic majors in a session on Saturday at 11 a. m. A presentation will be made at 9 by Dr. Cecile H. Edwards, chairman of the Department of Home Economics.

Other persons taking part in the conference will be Miss Ophelia Boone, president of the Home Economics Club; Dr. B. C. Webb, dean of the School of Agriculture; and Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, president of A&T. All sessions are open to the public.

A & T Choir Reveals Exciting New Program for 3,000 Mile Spring Tour

The famed A&T State University Concert Choir, long a favorite on the Eastern Seaboard and in the Midwest, made a promise last year which the singers intend to keep.

Dr. Howard T. Pearsall, who has conducted the choir since the early 1950s, promised patrons at last year's programs a unique new repertoire featuring selections by noted black composers.

After months of scanning literature and rehearsals, Pearsall feels he and the choir have been able to produce an outstanding concert program.

The choir will begin their 3,000 mile tour in Philadelphia on April 9 and conclude with a concert in Madison, Wisconsin, on May 4.

Other programs are scheduled for Boston, East Orange, N. J., Hartford, Conn., Trenton, N. J., Hampton, Va., Detroit, Mich., and Cleveland.

The featured composition of this year's tour will be a cantata, entitled "Grandma Moses" (Harriet Tubman) by Decomier. Another group of songs will be spiritual settings by Work, Hall, Johnson, Ryder and Burleigh. A holdover from last year's program will be an excerpt from the Congolose mass, "The Missa Luba."

The choir will also perform several motets and anthems by Nathaniel Dett, John Work and George Walker.

This year's choir features a number of talented soloists.

Annette Kitchen, of Greensboro, N. C., recently won a competition sponsored by the Shriners.

Another voice major and soloist is Angeline Clache, a native of Accomac, Va. She recently sang the leading role in the A&T Opera Theatre production of Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana."

The other soloists are Audrey Harris, Alexandria, Va.; James Weston, Charleston, S. C.; and Maurice Scott, Winton, N. C. Lindell Mills of Greensboro will accompany the choir.

"Our main aim is to communicate with our audience," said Pearsall. "Each of these singers (Continued on Page 8)
