VETERANS ADMINISTRATION

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson said veterans totally and permanently disabled by service-connected disabilities will find it considerably easier to obtain "wheel chair homes" under provisions of a new law.

These are veterans who are eligible for GI loan benefits and who need specially adapted housing with such special fixtures as ramps or movable facilities.

"Under the new law (PL 91-506)," Johnson noted, "the VA is authorized to make direct

MISS DELORES PEOPLES

HOSPITAL PATIENT USES TIME TO CULTIVATE ARTISTIC GIFTS

Miss Delores Peoples of 219½ Gant Street is now a patient at the L. Richardson Hospital at the time that the above picture was made. Of course, one who observes this picture and the surroundings of her threads, needles, and ready made pieces that are completed would declare that she is a Home Economics Teacher in College. Miss Peoples states that, "knitting, crocheting, and sewing is an artistic gift." She states that as a patient at L. Richardson Hos-

more profitably as a patient "she found time to catch-up with many of her orders in knitting and crocheting caps, scarfs, and sweaters." She uses her time more profitably as a patient than many young people on the recuperation list, who play different types of card games and gossip while sitting in the solarium in the sunshine. Miss Peoples knits and crochets with the many different colors of threads. When she is through with a sweater or scarf with the colors of red, white, and blue one would declare that it was bought from a high-class clothing store.

A&T Receives $80,000 In Grants For New Cooperative Program

Rochester, N. Y.—Two grants received by A&T State University Monday totalling $80,000 will enable the University to strengthen its new program in cooperative education.

The two grants, one from Eastman Kodak Company of Rochester, N. Y. for $60,000 and one for $20,000 from the U. S.

Department of Health, Education and Welfare, were announced by Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, president of A&T.

Eastman Kodak's special grant in the amount of $15,000 for each of a four-year period, was designated primarily for the development of combination

James Lilly Gives Aggies A New Weapon For Football Games

The secret weapon that A&T unleashed against Virginia State last Saturday was not really a secret to coach Hornsby Howell.

"We knew that James Lilly could run 40 yards in 4.4 seconds," said Howell. "The only reason that we had not used him more before is that he had some difficulty adjusting to our system."

Lilly, at 152 pounds, is the smallest player on the Aggies' roster, but Howell has big plans for the speedster in the future, like next Saturday against North Carolina Central.

Lilly, a native of Norwood, N. C., is almost bashful about making the two long touchdowns runs (65 and 66 yards) that knocked the Trojans from the ranks of the undefeated.

"It's a funny thing," he said, "but we hadn't worked on that play all week. When I got the ball, I saw such a big hole that I didn't even have to fake."

Lilly only carried the ball twice against Virginia State, but he finished the game with 131 yards. And he's only a freshman.

After he crossed the line of scrimmage, he accelerated and left the Trojan defenders almost in their tracks.

"I was surprised when I went all the way the first time," said Lilly, "but I was even more surprised the second time, because I thought the linebacker saw me and would follow me."

Lilly compiled quite a record for himself at South Stanley High. He led his team to the state playoffs two years in a row, scoring 12 touchdowns his final season.

"We were hesitant about using Lilly in Saturday's game," said Howell, "because he had a bruised foot. As for his size, as long as he gets the job done that won't work against him."

Because of shoddy play by some of his veterans in recent games, Howell had promised to install some new faces into the Aggie lineup. Lilly was one of those new faces.

"We got some good blocking on both of those plays," added Howell, "and Lilly did a fine job of running with the ball."

Lilly, has generally been a punt return specialist and had appeared on offense in only one other game. All that is behind him now and the future will probably find the Aggies setting him up for more long runs.
