er and their dependents asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q — What action should I take to get the increase that Congress recently voted for pension payments?

A — You need take no action. Any increase in pension because of legislation will be made automatically by the VA computer system.

Q — I have been attending school at night and working during the day. I receive one-half time educational assistance allowance from the VA. I now wish to attend the same school full time, and study the same subjects. What notice must I give the VA?

A — Visit the Registrar's Office and have them notify the VA that you have become a full-time student. With no further action on your part, your educational assistance allowance will be increased to the full-time rate.

Q — As a nonveteran, may I buy a GI home which has been repossessed and offered for sale?

A — Yes. The Veterans Administration sells these properties to anyone who can qualify as to income and credit. VA has a substantial number of homes which have been foreclosed following non-payment of the loan by a GI purchaser. See your real estate broker, since most brokers cooperate with the VA, to find out if any of these homes are in the area where you may want to buy.

Q — I have a service-connected disability which required continuous treatment. Since I plan to travel abroad this summer, what arrangements should I make regarding medication and treatment?

A — Contact the VA clinic now treating you to obtain appropriate supplies of your prescribed medication to carry with you, and ask for suggestions about obtaining medical supplies and services abroad. In case of a medical emergency, contact the American Embassy or Consular Office.

A&T, Hayes-Taylor 'Y' To Provide Recreation, Hot Meals For 250 Youth

A pilot after-school program for 250 underprivileged youngsters, featuring wholesome recreation and hot meals daily, will be initiated by A&T State University.

The new program, announced this week, will be financed by a $15,623 grant through the Guilford County Economic Opportunity Council (EOC).

While officials of A&T will conduct the project, most of the programs will be held at the local Hayes-Taylor YMCA, directed by A&T graduate David Morehead.

Dr. Roy Moore, Head of the A&T Health Department, will supervise the nutrition project, which he said will have educational and recreational components as well.

"Attaching the food component to a recreation program will go a long way toward enhancing the total development of the individual," said Dr. Moore. "Providing recreation programs without food for youngsters who don't get proper nutrition almost encourages criminality. A boy might buy ten cents worth of food and steal $10 worth if he's not eating properly. Or even if he doesn't steal, a ten cent candy bar is not going to give him proper nutrition."

The program will be open to 250 youngsters from the ages of 10 to 14. They'll participate in a wide-ranging program, which will include sports, dramatics and other activities such as dancing. Moore said there will also be classes in "civic responsibility."

At the end of the day of the Monday to Friday program, each

By Richard Moore

Durham, N. C. — It has been a long time since A&T has had an individual scoring basketball star, the kind that commands the headlines or makes the all-conference team. Aggie coach Cal Irvin likes it this way.

"We would rather have a cohesive unit, than a high scoring star," Irvin is fond of saying.

This season, Irvin has just the kind of ball club he relishes. There are five unselfish players, bent on winning but not bent on individual achievement.

The Aggies' "teamwork" paid off again here last Saturday night and A&T downed arch rival North Carolina Central 78-64.

It was the 15th victory of the season against three losses and
