Editor's Note: Veterans and their dependents are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q — What is the maximum VA loan available for a mobile home?

A — For the purchase of a mobile home only, it is $10,000 payable over 12 years and 32 days.

Q — I withdrew from school under the G. I. Bill at the end of the semester two years ago, and plan to return to the same school to pursue the same program. How do I start my benefits again?

A — You should notify the school to submit a re-enrollment certification to VA. This would start your benefits again, provided you have not exhausted your entitlement and the school and program are currently approved.

Q — My deceased father was a VA pensioner. Because of a childhood accident, my sister is unable to work, and will never be able to do so. Is she eligible for a pension?

A — VA considers a helpless child as one who became permanently incapable of self support before age 18. If this is the case with your sister, you should submit a claim, with supporting medical evidence, to VA.

On Sept. 13 all the calls culminated in an announcement that Mrs. Gore had been appointed by the White House as one of 11 members of the new National Postal Service Advisory Council.

The Council will represent labor, postal users, and the public in advising the governing board of the National Postal Service, which was formerly the Post Office Department operated by the Federal government.

"I felt excited and humble because only 11 persons were chosen across the whole United States and I was one," she said. "I feel that I have received a high honor."

The fact that Mrs. Gore has received a barrage of calls is not as unusual as Richard Nixon supporting school integration. After coming to A&T 10 years ago as an assistant professor of education and guidance, she has helped hundreds of University students, faculty and community residents find job opportunities and further their education.

Her new position with the Postal Council only points out her versatility.

"When I finally asked the young lady what her inquiries were for, she told me that I was
