A&T Wins $1 Million In Two Grants For Research, Extension Work

Greensboro, N. C. — The president of A&T State University Wednesday announced that the University has received approval for two federal grants totaling $1,112,000.

Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy said both grants were awarded through the U. S. Department of Agriculture, one for extension work in rural communities, and the other for research in the field of agriculture and urban problems.

The funds were awarded through the Hatch Act and Smith-Lever Act, passed in 1890.

At its annual meeting, the A&T Board of Trustees approved a resolution recommending adequate minority representation on any coordinating or governing board adopted by the State Legislature in its proposed restructuring of higher education.

The board's resolution stated: "We recommend the retention of local boards of trustees
