Paul McKibbins Is Top Collegiate Quarterback

By Jacqueline Glisson

Football requires the coordination of several players, but one in particular guides the fortune of the entire pack.

The man who leads by example, makes split second decisions, and shows consistency as well as the ability to make bit play, must be the man jamming his hands into the rear of his offensive center — the college quarterback.

North Carolina A&T has two freshmen field generals who can make things happen, one of whom is Paul McKibbins from West Fulton High School in Atlanta, Ga.

With so much pressure on a freshman, McKibbins says, "A quarterback must have coolness. He has to be able to put things together and see what's going on during every play.

And it's nothing like high school ball.

"It's a new experience," he said recently, "but with the kind of players we have on the team, I really feel welcome and a part of the squad."

Working as a unit is what makes a team and quarterback. The 193 pounder said "I experienced one of my greatest thrills when I threw two college touchdowns passes in our game against Morgan State College.

McKibbins has shared the quarterbacking duties with Leonard Reliford, a Macon, Ga. native. He has participated in seven of the Aggies' eight contests and connected on 39 of 86 passes for 501 yards while personally rushing for 68 yards per game.

"I would like to see my passing percentage go up," he mentioned, "but my main objective is to see the team win the last few games of the season."

Sporting a 5-2-1 record for the season, A&T can look forward to three years of McKibbins' heroics as displayed in the Aggies' game against Morgan State College. Down 21-6 in Baltimore, Md., A&T's McKibbins threw an eight-yard strike and a 50-yard bomb to All-American hopeful Charles Middleton to nearly spoil the Bears' homecoming, 21-20.

It is no wonder why he has proven time and time again his worth on the gridiron since he also received collegiate offers

A&T Receives Engineering Grant

Marshall Colston, director of planning and development at A&T State University (left), receives $1,000 check from David M. Forsythe, personnel representative for Atlantic-Richfield Company of Dallas, Tex. The funds will be used to support A&T's engineering program.

TWO PROMINENT TEACHERS JOIN STAFF AT A&T STATE U.

Two nationally known engineering professors have been added to the staff at A&T State University.

Dr. Reginald Amory, dean of the School of Engineering, announced the appointment of Dr. Suresh Chandra as chairman of the Department of Mechanical Engineering and James L. White as visiting associate professor of electrical engineering.

Chandra, who comes to A&T from the University of Miami, has published widely in the fields of fluid mechanics and thermal contact conductance.

He is also national vice-president of Pi Tau Sigma, mechanical engineering honor society. Chandra formerly worked for the Indian Aluminum Company and the Molybdenum Company.

He holds degrees from the University of Allahabad in India, the University of Louisville and Colorado State University.

White comes to A&T from his position as a development engineer for IBM System Manufacturing in San Jose, Calif.

White's engineering specialties are logic design, programming and test engineering.

White holds the bachelor of science in electrical engineering from Howard University and the master of science degree from the University of Santa Clara.

3,000 EXPECTED TO ATTEND AGGIES BLUE-GOLD CAGE CONTEST

Area fans will get their first look at the nationally-ranked A&T State University basketball team when the Aggies compete in the annual Blue-Gold game on Saturday, Nov. 20.

More than 3,000 persons are expected to witness the game, to be played in Moore Gym at 7:30 p.m. The game will feature the talented varsity team against the freshmen.

Even before the official season got underway, the Aggies, coached by Cal Irvin and Warren Reynolds, has been ranked

No. 7 among the nation's small colleges by Smith and Street magazine.

Last year, A&T compiled an outstanding record, won the District 26 NAIA title and advanced to the quarterfinals of the NAIA Tournament in Kansas City, Mo.

Spearheading the varsity team will be veterans Chucky Evans, Al Carter, Lloyd Glover and William Harris. The freshmen will be led by 6-8 Lon Smith and 6-1 guard Allen Spruill.
