Protest Planned On Bridge Project

Residents of the L. Richardson Memorial Hospital neighborhood said Wednesday they will protest a proposed Florida Street bridge project which will provide easier access to the hospital.

But city officials said the plan has been established since 1959 and any other access closer to the hospital wouldn't be feasible.

Mrs. Mark Ray said the South Benbow Community Club formed two years ago by about 100 residents of the hospital neighborhood known as Benbow Park, met Sunday at the home of Mrs. James Hill at 1921 Carlton St. and began preparing a presentation opposing the street plan. They plan to protest to the council on Feb. 3.

Mrs. Ray said petitions are being signed by residents of Benbow Road, Eton Street, Carlton Street and other streets in the area and that at least 50 homeowners already had stated their opposition.

She said, "We are opposing it because it will increase traffic and hazard tremendously in our neighborhood, where families have invested life savings. The building of the bridge will dump a great deal of unwanted traffic into our area."

The community club is being

FIRST BLACK WOMAN LAWMAKER IN N. C. WANTS TO ENCOURAGE WOMEN AND BLACKS

By RICHARD MOORE

DR. ALFREDA WEBB

"I want my appointment to this office to be an encouragement to both blacks and women."

Those were the remarks of Dr. Alfreda Webb, an attractive college professor and mother of three, who was sworn in Tuesday as the first black woman ever to serve as a member of the North Carolina General Assembly.

Dr. Webb, a professor of biology at A&T State University, received her oath of office from District Judge James C. Exum in Greensboro. She had previously been appointed to the position by Gov. Robert Scott, on recommendation of the Democratic Executive Committee of Guilford County.

As a new legislator, Dr. Webb will replace Rep. McNeil Smith, who resigned to accept an appointment to the State Senate.

"I feel like this service is the best way for me to be involved," said Dr. Webb. "People who are concerned ought to be there, not just talking."

She has been on the staff at A&T for 13 years. Her husband, Burleigh, is dean of the School of Agriculture at the University.

A native of Mobile, Ala., Dr. Webb is also a licensed veterinarian, having earned her professional degree at Tuskegee Institute. She also holds a B. S. degree in physical education from Tuskegee and a master of science degree from Michigan State University.

Why did she decide to seek

Gibson Denied Suit Dismissal

A federal judge Wednesday turned down Guilford County Sheriff Paul Gibson's request for dismissal of a suit brought against him on claims he refused to hire a woman because of her race.

Lawyers employed by the county had contended in a motion that the suit should be dismissed. The suit, pending in U.S. Middle District Court, was filed by Brenda L. Bruner.

The woman alleged she was denied a position as a juvenile investigator because of her race and that Sheriff Gibson subsequently hired a white woman less qualified for the job.

Gibson has denied any racial discrimination was involved in hiring a woman for the position. His motion for summary dismissal of the suit was denied by Judge Eugene A. Gordon.

A date for trial of the case has not yet been scheduled.

CITIES NEED TO HELP PAY COSTS OF PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION, SAYS OFFICIAL AT A&T STATE UNIVERSITY

By RICHARD MOORE

Washington, D. C. — Privately owned public transportation systems which find themselves in financial difficulties, may have to depend upon subsidies from the federal government and even the cities themselves, members of a national transportation meeting were told today by the director of A&T State University's Transportation Institute.

In remarks prepared for delivery to the annual meeting of the Highway Research Board at the Sheraton-Park Hotel, Arthur Saltzman said it is becoming increasingly more difficult to have a transportation system pay for itself out of the fare box.

"Transportation is a necessary service that a city should provide, like garbage collection, water and medical services," said Saltzman. "I would like to see more people in city government view the situation like I do."

Speaking on the decline of the transit industry, Saltzman, formerly of the Urban Systems Laboratory at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said:

"The public transportation industry, mass transit in particular, has tended to be quiet conservative toward innovating operating practices. Any departure from the standard or any new
