An Old Lady In Laurel Springs

Yesterday the Legislature adjourned in honor of an old lady in Laurel Springs. She was 94 years old, which was in itself an achievement, but her reason for being proud was more fundamental than that.

The lady was Mrs. Rebecca Doughton. One of her sons, Congressman R. L. Doughton, as head of the powerful Ways and Means Committee of the United States House of Representatives was in Washington laboring with the shaping of the fiscal policies of the nation upon which depend President Roosevelt's plans for reconstruction. The other, Representative R. A. Doughton, was in Raleigh, where as head of the important Finance Committee of the North Carolina House of Representatives, he was busy with the financial future of North Carolina.

Few ladies live so long as Mrs. Doughton, and fewer still live to see her sons attain such success as Mrs. Doughton's sons have attained. More remarkable than that, it is unlikely that any mother ever saw her two sons bearing at the same time the responsibilities for shaping the finances of their State and their nation.

The adjournment yesterday by the House in honor of Mrs. Doughton was a proper token of respect for the mother of flesh and blood and emphasized the pride which the State as a mother shares in the Doughton boys with the old lady in Laurel Springs.—News and Observer.

More Confidence, Better Times

It was said far and wide during recent weeks that the best sign of the hour was upping public confidence. Now we find evidences of recovery beginning to appear in the business statistics.

The index of wholesale prices, which has been declining steadily for months, recently made its first sustained rise. Farm products have shown an improved trend. An upturn in car loadings has appeared. There is a substantial increased demand for many household appliances. Indications toward the end of March were that commercial failures would be the lowest for seven or eight years.

Everyone is agreed that recovery will be gradual and most are likewise agreed that it will be steady until things become stabilized, and that there need be no fear of important recessions. New money is appearing due largely to the war on hoarding and it is providing jobs and stimulating production.

Personally we cannot understand the attitude of certain Senators throwing monkey wrenches in the machinery in an effort to retard the gradual reconstruction.

It would be our policy to co-operate with the movement, even though it was conducted in such a way that we did not approve.

We are at a loss to understand the attitude of Senator Long, of Louisiana, who appears to be ready to break ranks from practically all Democratic Senators in their wholehearted support of the way President Roosevelt has planned to bring back normal times to the United States.

If publicity is what he is after, then he certainly is getting his just deserts.

Gardens Being Planted As Relief Measure

The planting of gardens by individuals and by municipalities and industrial plants, as a relief measure is proceeding at a rapid rate in North Carolina. Charles A. Sheffield, assistant extension director at State College, and agricultural director for the Governor's relief office, states that approximately 130,000 relief families in the State will grow the subsistence gardens this spring and that more than 50 cities and towns are planting community gardens.

"There are families living in towns and cities where the individual garden cannot be had and for these folk, community farm gardens cultivated as a unit and ranging in size from 5 to 300 acres are being planted," Sheffield says. "This type of garden operates as a work relief project and will produce a large supply of foods that may be conserved for fall and winter distribution to needy families."

The agricultural extension service of State College is co-operating with the Governor's relief office in the work. Most counties have welfare officers who are directors of relief and some counties have both the welfare organization as well as the relief organization. All these agencies are being used in developing the garden idea. Standard garden seed packages are being distributed to families needing relief and 130,000 copies of a garden calendar have been printed for distribution.

Mr. Sheffield says the work is being efficiently organized throughout the State and that the relief officials are getting excellent co-operation. The plan offers a program of self-help for the unemployed and will mean a large financial saving to the tax-payers. It also means escape from the dole system and the retaining of self-respect by those temporarily out of work.
