The fact that Alleghany County ranks 99th in teacher training in North Carolina does not mean that the county school system has been retrogressing. On the other hand Alleghany has advanced a great deal during the last twenty-five years, but the fact is that other counties have moved forward at a faster pace. A few years ago Alleghany ranked ahead of Surry, Wilkes, Watauga, and Ashe Counties in teacher training, but in recent years these counties have raised their certification requirements for teachers and forged ahead of Alleghany. With full State control of schools it is only a matter of time before the State will cease to issue low certificates. The Board acted wisely in calling the attention of teachers to present trends in state education and in giving two years for teachers to meet certification requirements.

In writing the account of a suicide in another state a correspondent gave the story thus: "So he took a rope, went to the barn, put a noose around his neck, tied the other end to a rafter, and took one jump for the promised land. An immense crowd attended the funeral."

Where It Goes And Whence It's To Come

During the next two years the State of North Carolina expects to spend a considerable sum of money in performing various function of government. Just where the money will be spent and from whence it is scheduled to come should be interest- ing information to every citizen. The Durham Herald has compiled this in- teresting information as to income and expenditures:

The 1933 legislature appropriated a total of $41,114,450 to the various agencies of the state government for the fiscal year 1933-34. Of this total $9,125,100 is for debt service under the highway fund.

Another $4,243,275 goes toward the fund, making a total of $11,368,385 for interest and principal on public debts. This amount subtracted from the $41,114,450 total leaves $29,746,070 for operating expenses of the state government and all its agencies. Sixteen millions of this operating total goes to the public schools, leaving a balance of $13,746,070. Of this bal- ance $6,379,100 is allocated to the highway fund for the maintenance of state and county roads. This re- duces the operating balance to $7,366,970. Appropriations to the state universities and other institutions of higher learning total $1,371,000, leav- ing a balance of $5,995,970. This bal- ance is distributed among the State agencies as follows: judicial, $318,000; Confederate pensions, $722,415; administrative and executive depart- ments, $935,325; charitable institu- tions, $1,366,580, and $350,000 for emergencies.

The $15,807,860 appropriated to the highway fund for debt service and road maintenance is derived from the gasoline tax—$12,000,000—and motor vehicle registrations, $3,900,000. The $25,306,595 general fund ap- propriation is derived from the fol- lowing sources: corporate franchise and income taxes, $13,600,000; retail merchants sales tax, $8,400,000; in- dividual income and inheritance tax, $1,800,000; business and license taxes, $1,500,000; fees and non-tax reven- ues, $600,000.

There is one definite conclusion to be drawn from these figures: that this state is carrying a heavy debt load. "Of course we borrowed and spent the money and must pay it back," as The Herald says, but $11,368,385 is a considerable portion of a total annual budget of $41,000,000. It is about one-third as much as we are spending to operate the entire state government, including $16,000,000 for schools. No private business could prosper under such a debt load and neither can a state government.

"The other side of the ledger, where the money comes from, like- wise is interesting. A study of this list shows quite plainly that North Carolina business establishments are carrying their share of the tax load. Franchise and income taxes assessed against corporations account for $13,600,000. The retail merchants are looked to for another $8,400,000—to be paid of course by the consumer.

"But there is another side of the picture. The spending agencies are not provided with lavish allowances. The figure may seem large at first glance but when the number of in- mates and students is considered, $1,366,000 for charitable and correction- al institutions and $1,371,000 for state universities do not seem staggering. The inevitable conclusion is that gov- ernment is getting more so each year. If the government is taking on new duties and expanding its services it ought to increase in cost. We have an idea such is the case, though the taxpayer does not like the explana- tion for the increase in tax levies."—Mt. Airy Times.

SOMETHING WRONG SOME- WHERE

Winston-Salem Journal.

Much as we admire and favor the Roosevelt administration's plan of at- tack on depression, we have a pro- found conviction that there is some- thing wrong somewhere when a State like North Carolina can get millions for roads, while schools and colleges and universities must suffer almost to the point of disaster for lack of funds.

There is something badly wrong, too, when a city like Winston-Salem can get two hundred thousand dollars to build streets, while our children are in danger of being robbed of ade- quate educational advantages, due to failure of any governmental agency—city, State or Federal—to provide sufficient money to give them the sort of schools they ought to have.

A civilization that puts roads and streets ahead of schools is headed in the wrong direction. Unless it chang- es its course, there is grave danger ahead for it.
