"HERE AND THERE"

Saturday James Wedell, holder of the world's speed record for land planes, flew from New York to Raleigh in 89 minutes, averaging 300 miles per hour.

Noticed headline in our favorite daily which reads, "WILL FUR TEETH IN TOBACCO PACK?"

Two 10-year-old boys in a tiny monoplane soared away from the Newark, N. J., airport Sunday on a 10,000 mile flight to the jungles of Central America.

News dispatches says that Gen. Johnson will have to settle a virtual tug of war between labor and industry when he returns from his western trip.

Part of an ancient will: "No priest or other person is to insult my corpse by uttering impious observations over my body. Let it be covered snug and warm, and there is an end. My family and friends are not to mourn my death, even with a black rag.

An expedition has set out from England for Southern India to obtain seeds of a plant cultivated by a sect of Hindu monks.

Uncle Si says a sure cure for chicken pox is to have the patient stand in the hen-house door and have some one shoo the chickens out over his head.

High school news in an exchange: "Miss M. was sick Monday and absent from her classroom for the first time in eight years.

In the headlines: "Secretary Hull is Going South."—Another one of our boys who doesn't like the cold winters above the Potomac.

Notice that Texas grandmothers have given up their knitting and are playing volley ball.

The Duke University library has 347,302 books. That's a lot of books, but youth must be given every opportunity to discover and assimilate the thoughts and discoveries of the human race.

The Skyland Post of West Jefferson moved into new quarters last week. A well-edited weekly paper needing roomier quarters for expansion under the NRA.

Old Man Winter seems to be getting serious about this weather business. Monday he obscured the hills with frozen mist, and Tuesday he roared his winds across the mountains and pelted the earth with scattering snowflakes.

Uncle Sam is going to build Galax (Va.) a new post-office building to cost over $51,000.

Hunting season for birds opened yesterday. Sportsmen will be tramping the hills and meadows for the next few weeks.

We wonder if you knew there were 12 towns in the United States named Sparta. Now you look it up and see where we made our mistake.

Songs of Long Ago

"Old 97"

(By J. Gaskill McDaniel, in The Raleigh News and Observer.)

In view of the fact that hilly billy ballads are enjoying an increased autumn popularity, it may not be far amiss to review the why and wherefore of the most rustic and popular concoction of them all.

The wreck of the Old 97 actually occurred on September 27, 1903, on a curving cotton mill trestle in North Danville, Va.

An investigation of the wreck of the four-car mail train by a coroner's jury composed of Charles E. Hughes, E. L. Gerst, B. F. Motley, C. L. Booth, M. F. Dove and W. S. Morrison brought forth the verdict that the Old 97 was traveling at an excessive rate of speed.

Among railroad men, it is commonly believed that the brakes failed to hold. When it passed Franklin Junction, the locomotive apparently was out of control, and the nearer it came to Danville, the faster it traveled.

Fire broke out in the midst of the debris, following the impact, making the work of rescuers hazardous.

Much-a-do About Nothing

A Non-descript Mood—"My Buddy"—An Evening's Sunset, Etc.,—Just A Few Local Observations "By The Man In The Street."

"Proof of the pudding is in the pie you eat," goes an age-old adage—Alleghany county voted "wet" last week here in the repeal contest and Monday afternoon the weatherworks was blowing frozen vapor.

Uncle Sam is going to build Galax (Va.) a new post-office building to cost over $51,000. Also going to build in 236 other towns. Gosh, but Uncle Sam must have gobs of money.

The mutilated dead were carried to various Danville undertaking establishments, and prominent officials came to the scene for an investigation.

The wreck of the Old 97 was but one of many tragedies that have inspired mournful ditties along Tin Pan Alley, bringing plenty of the long green into the coffers of song writers who had their tongues in their cheeks while penning the dirges.

Far be it from me to poke fun at such songs. They are dear to the hearts of men who wreak a livelihood from honest dirt, and as such they are truly deserving of a place in the musical catalogue of our America.

EVERY person has the same number of minutes in a 24-hour day as every other person. It is not how much time I have but how I use that time that counts.

TWO national organizations are making their annual drive for membership and funds. The annual roll call for membership in the Red Cross is an event of great importance and it touches every city, village, and community in the United States.

through which martyrs are now living and celebrated another Armistice of that conflict last Saturday. Did you recall that eventful day, reader? You active in war-zone territory? ... Well, war is hell, especially, that one was, and there'll continue to be wars and rumors of wars, but the guy that comes out of war, left to live with just half of himself physically fit and the remaining portion dead is something we should all remise at Armistice time, and render a prayer for those "buddies" maimed with that dreaded of all diseases in a government hospital fighting his last fight.

Since last Thursday night we have been wondering where we might get a little sugar in Sparta (this is on the Q. T. brother) but some fellows took about 6,000 pounds away from the Cash and Carry boys and just acted scandalous about it.

Winter and his yawns.

ECONOMIC HIGH-LIGHTS

Happenings That Affect Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks, Tax Bills of Every Individual—National and International Problems Inseparable from Welfare

It is now expected that the New Year will see the approval of all the industrial codes. That will mean that the National Recovery Administration has completed its first great task.

One important NRA problem is going to be the attitude of the press. Here's where the recovery administration made a possibly far-reaching mistake.

General belief is that Mr. Roosevelt is heartily in favor of a free press—this his mistake is in not holding tight enough rein on some of his assistants.

One fine afternoon back in 1913 an obscure prince was shot in the equally obscure city of Sarajevo. To most of the world the event simply meant one more scarehead and nothing more.

Matters are not especially different in Europe now. Hitler's withdrawal of Germany from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference, has sent the greatest scare since those 1913 days through premiers and emperors, congresses and parliaments.

Final decision may be left to France, which has most at stake, is most afraid. Many European statesmen believe it is time to declare a preventative war on Germany, crush her absolutely and unseat Hitler, before she has time to prepare.

So far as the United States is concerned, these events are of only economic importance. Roosevelt policy will doubtless be to keep hands off—even in case of war, to pursue complete and dispassionate neutrality.

Speaking of fires, the U. S. has one of its own. It's consuming the prairie country. Not a literal blaze, it is in the minds and hearts of farmers, who believe the AAA has failed to aid them; have watched their purchasing power, in many instances, go sharply down while other prices went sharply up.

Whole future of the Administration farm program is at stake and strongest efforts will be given to bringing order from chaos.
