In Memoriam

In memory of my dear uncle Monroe, who departed this life October 26, 1934.

Uncle Monroe has gone and left us,
Left us now forever more;
But some day we will go to meet him,
On the bright and golden shore.

It was on one Friday morning,
The hour was getting late;
God sent a snow white angel,
To open wide the golden gate.

Some may think our sorrows are over,
And our wounded hearts are healed;
But they will never know the sorrow,
That's within our hearts concealed.

He is now sleeping,
I am sure he is at rest;
We all loved him dearly,
But God loved him best.
His Niece,
Elizabeth Lundy

Sparta High School News

On Thursday and Friday mornings of last week and faculty and student body enjoyed the two last addresses of the splendid series that made by prominent local people on topics suitable for the observation of American Education Week.

Thursday morning "Governor" Doughton spoke on "Taxation in North Carolina." His long association with the State Revenue department and his life-time interest in the welfare and progress of North Carolina has made him thoroughly familiar with the sources from which the state derives its income and equally familiar with the disbursement that the state in turn must make for the education, protection and progress of its people.

He was followed with interest as he outlined in a clear and forceful manner the different sources from which the state draws its revenue; namely: inheritance and income taxes, personal and property taxes, franchises, licenses and sales tax. He then cited the many benefits conferred by the state upon its citizens in return for taxes received.

On Friday morning, Attorney R. F. Crouse, in a stirring Armistice day address, greatly impressed his audience by his earnest appeal for greater respect for our national constitution. He said that unless the principles of liberty and freedom which it embodied were jealously guarded that we would not be keeping faith with the ten million mothers' sons who died in the belief that they were fighting "to make the world safe for democracy," and that we would jeopardize the future security of the American people. He said that mere education of the youth was not enough. They must be taught to understand and reverence these fundamental principles—principles which have developed out of thousands of years of struggle and bloodshed on the part of our forefathers. In a few years hence he said the students to whom he was speaking would be shouldering the responsibility of carrying this great heritage of liberty forward. He appealed to them in an earnest and sincere manner to rise above individual selfishness and greed, to respect this, "the greatest document ever struck off by human hands," and to carry its principles forward inviolable.

CONCERN FELT AT ELKIN FOR "KLONDIKE NIRA"

Elkin, Nov. 13.—Deep concern prevails at Klondike farm, near here, since a recent cablegram was received by Ruohs Pylon, manager of the farm, bearing the information of the illness of Klondike NIRA in Little America.

The message was dispatched by Admiral Richard E. Byrd, direct from the Byrd expedition. Whether it is the climatic conditions that is seriously affecting the health of the "pet of the expedition" or on the other hand an attack of homesickness for her relatives so cozily situated on the sunny slopes of Klondike farm, has not been determined.
