cution, and by Attorney Stuart B. Campbell, Wytheville, for the defense. Also assisting with the prosecution was Town Attorney Jack Matthews, of Gaax.

The case took on the aspect of perhaps one of the hardest fought court battles ever fought in Grayson county, and never before, it is said, had the question of psychology been before the court and in the general discussion by the people in the county, as in this case, growing, as it did, out of the defense insanity plea and Delp's actions, claimed by the defense to be the result of a disordered mind.

Since being in Roanoke jail, Delp is said to be entirely non-communicative, paying no attention to anyone or anything except his guitar, which he is said to play almost constantly. The jailor said that he "can play a guitar beautifully but he won't talk to anyone," and that they even had to coax him to eat.

Defense Attorney Campbell has let it be known that he will file an appeal in behalf of Delp with the Virginia State Supreme Court of Appeals.

Musicians Will Compete Friday Night At Galax

Various String Bands Have Registered. Among These Is Paul Miles' Sparta Orchestra

Registration is practically complete for the Old Fiddlers' convention to be held Friday night, April 12, at Galax in the Galax high school auditorium, according to Dr. W. P. Davis, of Galax, who is in charge of registration for the contest. Those in charge of arrangements are anxious that those who desire to attend obtain their tickets at once, as approximately 300 have been sold and every indication points to a record-breaking crowd.

Among the registrations already received, with more still coming, Dr. Davis said, are the following noted string bands: Jack Reedy and his Fiddling Mountaineers, of Marion, Va., who have won at the Whitetop festival on previous occasions, and who played for old-fashioned dances in the presence of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt when the first lady visited the Whitetop festival in 1933; Paul Miles and his Sparta orchestra, Sparta, which is said to be one of the best string bands in Western North Carolina; H. S. Gravely and his Stumptown band, of Max Meadows, Va., and H. G. Bedsaul, with the Rayfield brothers, of Winston-Salem.

Galax will be represented in the contest by Troy Cockerham and his band and Coy Hampton and his Gaax Variety String band, as well as by Dr. Davis and his Ballards Branch Bog Trotters.

Woodlawn (Va.) high school has entered its FERA orchestra, which, it will probably be recalled, broadcast from Station WDBJ, Roanoke, some time ago. Carroll county will also have bands in the contest from Austinville, Allsonia and various other points.

According to Dr. Davis, it is hoped to make this occasion a yearly event, extending over one or two days. It is also hoped that more commodious quarters may be obtained for next year's event, and plans are under way to bring this about.

Galax, it is said, is peculiarly adapted to this type of gathering, as it is situated at the center of the source of supply of this type of music in this entire section, has good hotel accommodations and has splendid road connections with all of the mountain sections of Virginia and Western North Carolina.

Boys Between 17 And 25 May Enlist In Navy

About July of this year, a large increase in the Navy enlistment quota is expected to take place, and all boys living in Alleghany, Ashe, Surry, Wilkes, Alexander, Davie, Catawba, Davidson, Iredell, Yadkin and Rowan, who are interested in a Naval career, should apply at the Navy Recruiting Sub-Station at Salisbury. The office is located in the Salisbury post office building, and applications are being received, it is said.

In order for a young man to be eligible for enlistment, he must be unmarried, have completed at least the seventh grade in school, be of good moral character, be a citizen of the United States, pass a satisfactory physical examination, and be between the ages of 17 and 25 years. In no case will a person be enlisted who has anyone dependent upon them for support.

Applications may be made on any week day, holidays excepted, preferably between the hours of 9 a. m. and 1 p. m.

Carolinas To Be Advertised In Many Papers

THE TIMES inaugurates Series Of Advertisements Prepared By Carolinas, Inc., In This Issue

Joining with scores of other Carolina newspapers, the Alleghany Times, this week inaugurates a series of advertisements prepared by The Carolinas, Inc., for the purpose of arousing Carolinians to a greater knowledge and appreciation of their states and stimulate development of means of carrying the Carolina message to the world.

Present plans contemplate launching the campaign with a full-page advertisement in some papers, to be followed by quarter-page ads at intervals of one week, the latter to appear in a larger list of papers. Space will be contributed by this newspaper in furtherance of the aims of The Carolinas, Inc., a non-profit, non-promotional group of citizens of North and South Carolina interested in advertising the scenic, historical, recreational, agricultural and economic advantage of the Carolinas.

Plans for the program in Carolina newspapers were outlined to the North Carolina Press association last summer and at its most recent meeting and the movement has the wholehearted endorsement of D. Hiden Ramsey, Asheville, president, and the Press Association. Nearly three-fourths of the approximately two hundred daily and weekly newspapers in North Carolina have agreed to participate in the program.

The Carolinas, Inc., was formed last spring. J. E. L. Wade, Commissioner of Public Works, Wilmington, is President of the organization, which is officered and directed by outstanding Carolinians who serve without pay. At a recent meeting in Charlotte the board of directors mapped out a far-reaching program. Included in its numerous recommendations was enthusiastic endorsement of plans for the federal government to develop large recreational parks and turn them over to the state, provided adequate acreage is made available, and state planning boards were urged to use PWA funds in developing smaller wayside parks where motorists may break their journeys for rest or food.
