

New Carnation Field Agent Is Given This Area

Ray Maysilles has arrived in Galax from Sulphur Springs, Tex., to assume his new duties as field agent of the Carnation company to succeed Verne P. Melhuish, who has been in charge of this work since prior to the construction of the local Carnation milk evaporating plant. Mr. Maysilles was accompanied to Galax by Mrs. Maysilles.

Below is reprinted a news story published in the September 19 issue of The Daily News-Telegram, published in Sulphur Springs, Tex., concerning the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Maysilles for Galax.

The article follows: "Mr. and Mrs. Ray Maysilles are leaving this week for Galax, Virginia, where Mr. Maysilles is to continue his work, a very important work, for the new Carnation Milk plant which is now in operation in the 'Old Dominion.' He holds a responsible position with the Carnation Company, and his duties call him into every field where a new plant begins operation.

"Sulphur Springs never had finer people or more worthwhile citizens than Mr. and Mrs. Maysilles, and it is with genuine regret and sorrow on the part of the whole town and dairy sections of Hopkins and adjoining counties that they are leaving.

"The following splendid, well written tribute is paid them by a friend, who expresses the sentiment of all who know them personally or the work each has done while among us:

"It is with sincerest regret that the people of Sulphur Springs learn of the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Maysilles to a new field of work.

"Mr. and Mrs. Maysilles came to us as strangers two years ago and it is very rare that you find two people as willing to cooperate and give their all as these splendid folks did.

"Mrs. Maysilles was active in church work, president of the Garden Club and an active member of several other clubs. Her kind personality and love for doing for others has won her a host of friends who deeply regret her leaving.

"Mr. Maysilles made a large number of friends in his two years here, and proved himself a valuable man, not only to his company but in dealing with the milk producing farmers, by showing a fine courtesy, a clear understanding of local problems, and a desire to iron out all troubles in the fairest manner possible. Over one hundred leading citizens have voiced their disapproval, through petitions, of moving Mr. Maysilles. These citizens were right in protesting as it is not often that people like these come out way and we need to keep them with us.

"Let us hope that their move is not permanent and that they will return when their work is finished elsewhere.

"They can be assured that there shall always be a warm welcome awaiting them upon their return to Sulphur Springs."

His chauffeur captured the attacker whom police identified as Mejdardich Karayan.

They said the Armenian asserted the motive for the attack was Mariner's refusal to issue him a visa for travel to the United States.

Roosevelt Issues Call For Special Congress Session

November 15 Is Date Set For Solons To Gather In Washington; Chief Executive Is Heard

Washington, Oct. 12.—After calling a special session of congress for November 15, President Roosevelt outlined with pointed emphasis tonight a legislative program designed to help agriculture, industry and labor and produce "abundant abundance without waste."

While the current year has, generally speaking, been economically good, he told the nation in his tenth "fireside chat," there are many groups which "still have less purchasing power and a lower standard of living than the nation as a whole can permanently allow."

1. Crop control legislation to stabilize farm income and the nation's food supply.

2. Wage and hour legislation to increase the income of low-paid employees and, he said, thereby increase production of the things they would buy.

3. Land use legislation spending the TVA idea to other sections, and providing new expanses of fertile soil to which families in the dust bowl and other poorly productive sections may move.

4. Anti-trust legislation "to end monopoly—not to hurt but to free legitimate business."

5. Government reorganization to make the processes of democracy "work more efficiently."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke from the oval room of the White House after announcing the calling of a special session of congress at a two-minute press conference late in the afternoon.

He sat at a desk before a seeming myriad of microphones, under the sharp glare of photographic lights and motion picture photographers. For the latter, he later repeated portions of his speech.

The president spoke more rapidly than has been his custom but he added emphasis to his words with sharp accents and occasional pauses.

He did not include in his program for the special session his supreme court reorganization bill which was shelved by the senate at the last session.

"I shall ask this session of congress to consider immediately," he said, "certain important legislation which my recent trip through the nation convinces me the American people immediately need.

"This does not mean that other legislation, to which I am not referring tonight, is not important for our national well-being. But, other legislation can be more readily discussed at the regular session."

Congress will convene in special session November 15 instead of waiting until the regular session in January.

Travel Editors See Beauties Of Great Smoky Mountains

Bryson City, Oct. 11.—Travel executives and writers touring North Carolina as guests of the department of conservation and development and the Governor's hospitality committee, viewed the Great Smoky Mountains National Park and the Cherokee Indian reservation today.

The caravan including representatives of 35 cities in 23 states wound its way behind an escort of state highway patrolmen to the highest altitude reached by any motor road in Eastern America. More than 6,800 feet above sea level, Forney Ridge terminates on the lofty face of Clingman's Dome, the park's highest peak.

High Record As Public Servant Made By Hancock

Asheville, Oct. 12.—Representative Frank Hancock, of Oxford, who announced his candidacy for the United States Senate seat held by Senator Reynolds here today and who has made an enviable record as a state and national legislator, spent several hours in the city today and released his announcement shortly before his departure for Shelby. In Shelby, he is the guest of B. W. Royster, his roommate while a student at the University of North Carolina. Mr. Royster accompanied him to Asheville.

The entry of Congressman Hancock into the race as an opponent of Senator Reynolds is expected to eliminate Congressman Robert L. Doughton and former Senator Cameron Morrison at potential opponents of the Asheville legislator. Unless there are developments not now apparent, Senator Reynolds and Congressman Hancock will fight it out for the Democratic nomination at next June's primary.

Both men are aggressive campaigners—and have youth in their favor. Hancock will be 43 years of age on November 1, and Reynolds is about nine years older.

Congressman Hancock was educated in the Oxford graded schools and at Horner Military Academy, completing his education at the University of North Carolina. He was licensed to practice law in 1916, but his practice was interrupted by service in the World War.

He served in the state Senate of 1927 and in the lower House in 1929. During this session he was co-author of the school bill bearing his name; in 1930, he was elected to Congress, succeeding Charles Stedman, deceased, and was re-elected in 1932, 1934—and 1936.

He is married and the father of seven children—four boys and three girls.

Jackson Heard By Large Audience At U. Of N. C.

Chapel Hill, Oct. 12.—A large audience at the mother of state universities, which was granted its charter the same year that its state ratified the federal Constitution, was told today that "checks and balances on democracy must be found in reasonableness and restraints of popular majorities and not in judicial decisions."

Calling for a Supreme Court that will be responsive to the will of the voters as expressed at the polls, Robert H. Jackson, assistant United States attorney general, who recently has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for the presidency in 1940, told a Founder's Day assemblage at the University of North Carolina that "education will protect our rights and our institutions better than litigation."

The exercises here, which were broadcast, were held during the morning, while tonight and at other times during the week alumni groups representing 20,000 sons and daughters in America and far away lands are to gather to pay homage to Alma Mater.

Doughton May Retire At End Of Term In House

Washington, October 12.—It was learned here tonight that, in the face of the announcement today of Representative Frank Hancock, of North Carolina, that he would oppose Senator Reynolds next year, Representative Robert L. Doughton will not be a candidate for Reynolds' seat. Representative Doughton has long taken a position that if some strong candidate should come out against Reynolds he would not make the race.

It has been learned that Doughton and Hancock conferred with each other within the last few weeks and at that time the young North Carolina legislator advised his veteran colleague that he had decided to enter the contest.

That Hancock has Doughton support in the senatorial race is quite certain but he is not expected to become actively engaged in the contest.

It is believed that Doughton will not hesitate to let his friends know he is supporting his colleague from Oxford.

But being the modest man he is in political matters, no one expects Doughton to go further than that.

Those who have Doughton's confidence realize he has a strong desire to leave public life and retire to his mountain home at Laurel Springs.

For this reason, it is by no means certain he will be a candidate for any office in the 1938 Democratic primary.

Of course the last hint that he may retire will bring all kinds of pressure on him from North Carolina to stay in Congress. This will be prompted by a vast majority of citizens who feel Doughton is needed in Congress. Men of his legislative ability and keen insight into national problems come on the political horizon ever so often and it very apparent that the people of North Carolina realize this.

Representative Doughton is expected to issue a formal statement at an early date, announcing his future political course.

State Fair In Raleigh Has Good Opening Tuesday

Raleigh, Oct. 12.—With thousands of school children thronging the grounds on "their day," North Carolina's "largest" State Fair began here today.

Fair officials were enthusiastic over prospects. The weather was clear and many parents accompanied their children, who were guests. Free tickets also have been sent 900,000 pupils outside Raleigh to be guests Friday.

Counters worked late tonight tabulating the number of visitors, but said no official figures would be available before tomorrow.

However, officials indicated that it was the largest opening day in several years.

Charles Mangum, assistant to Fair Manager J. S. Dorton, said today's was the biggest opening crowd he had seen in several years' experience at the annual exposition. The shows and rides did a rushing business and the midway was crowded.

Judges went to work today on exhibits, but said it probably would be Thursday before they could complete their lists of winners because of the large number of offerings. Prize money will total $14,000.

Governor Hoey urged North Carolinians to "attend your largest State Fair" in a talk during a short program this morning officially opening the five-day exposition.

Judge Hayes To Meet Park Land Owners Oct. 22

Federal Judge Johnson J. Hayes is scheduled to be at the Federal building in Wilkesboro, on Friday, October 22, at 10 a. m. for the purpose of conferring with owners and persons having any interest in any part of the 5,100 acres of land which was condemned by the United States on October 3 for the National Park service.

This land lies in Alleghany and Wilkes counties and Judge Hayes is anxious for all owners and claimants to any interests in the boundary of land to meet him at the place and time mentioned above, in order for him to explain to them what steps they must take to draw out the money which has been paid into the clerk's office in Greensboro.

Judge Hayes will tell them, also, what they must do if they are not satisfied with the amount paid into the court. The government has paid in $34,000 for the benefit of those who own interest in this land, but the money, according to Judge Hayes, cannot be paid out until it is determined who is entitled to receive it, and the purpose of the meeting and hearing to be held in Wilkesboro is to enable the owners to get their money as promptly as possible, and without incurring any unnecessary expense.

Rep. Hancock To Oppose Reynolds For U. S. Senate

Announcement Is Made In Asheville, Home City Of Reynolds; Doughton Not Expected To Run

Winston-Salem, Oct. 13.—Definite announcement was made at Asheville last night by Representative Frank Hancock, of Oxford, that he would be a candidate for the United States Senate in the 1938 Democratic primary. It became apparent at the same time, in Washington, that Representative Robert L. Doughton would not enter the campaign. Hancock's announcement had been expected in the past few days after repeated conferences with former Senator Cameron Morrison and Doughton.

It was reported to have been learned that Doughton, who has considered strongly announcing himself as an opponent of Senator Robert R. Reynolds, will not be a candidate.

Hancock announced his candidacy at Asheville, home of Senator Reynolds, in exactly 66 words and would say no more. His brief statement was:

"I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination as United States senator in the June primary. I shall run on my record of public service as a member of Congress for the past seven years. My campaign will be an aggressive and vigorous one but always maintained on a high plane in keeping with my concept of the dignity and responsibilities of the office."

Doughton, in Washington to confer with the President, would not say he would not be a candidate, and added he would have a formal announcement to make soon. It was indicated, however, that he will choose to remain out of the race and possibly retire from public life.

Hancock told a newspaper man last night that he attempted to locate Senator Robert R. Reynolds, his opponent, and Representative Zeb Weaver, in Asheville before making his announcement but that he could not find them.

"We are the best of friends," he said.

Since it had been generally known that Hancock and Doughton conferred within the last two weeks Hancock was asked if he and Doughton had reached an agreement on who would run against Reynolds.

"I have never heard of any such agreement," the young North Carolina representative said. "I don't know what Mr. Doughton's plans are."

Washington, Oct. 12.—Asked shortly after he returned to Washington yesterday for his first visit since Congress adjourned, if he intended to run for the Senate against Senator Robert R. Reynolds, Representative Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina, refused to comment other than to say:

"Something will break before a great while. The time has come."
