

HILLS OF DESTINY

GENES LOUISE PROMOST

CHAPTER XII

"Oh, no, it couldn't!" It brought a dry sob from her. Her idolized father. And Lee! She knew it could not be true—but Stanley had been so horribly sure.

"Virginia, before I go, I want you to know that I never meant to take any part of the Circle V—not as things stand. I've only held the deed this long because I felt sure there was something behind all this business, and that I was being cheated somehow."

He stopped abruptly.

Good-bye. I'm off."

He held out his hand. Virginia took it, trying hard to act naturally in a situation horribly strained. A new alarm touched her with chilly fingers.

"But you—you're coming back, aren't you?"

"I don't know. I think the whole story is a poisonous lie, just an exceptionally dirty brand of the stuff that could be handed out by a paid informer with a grudge. But that's got to be proved, and I'm going away to do it. If I can't, you won't see me again. But if I can—"

He gripped her fingers suddenly. Hope and despair fought in a moment of numbing pressure. Then she felt a light, quick touch on her hair, and Lee was gone.

Lee rode first to Joey's cabin. Joey had known Matt for years, and Matt had loved and trusted the frascible, loyal old man. Joey listened, at first with excitement over the matter of the deed, and then with stupefied amazement.

"Why—why, Lee!" he stuttered, and then broke into a fury of denunciation. "It's a lie! I told ye he was no good! I knowed he was layin' for ye!"

"Yes, Joey, but that won't help me prove it isn't true."

Joey's fury died. "I know, Lee," he said shakily. "Jes' believin' things ain't proof, is it? An' I can't help ye. I just came back from a trip one time an' found ye here. He was kinda close-mouthed about ye, Matt was."

Every line of the old man's figure sagged under this new calamity. "Oh, well, never mind, Joey. I'll run it down."

"Where ye goin', Lee?"

"I'm going to find that Mexican willage if I have to work my way from one end of the border to the other. But first I want to locate Lawler and Slanty Gano. Good-bye, Joey. Take care of Virginia."

In the shelter of a distant thicket Slanty Gano, keeping watch over the Valley of the Sun, saw a distant figure ride away from the ranch house. It disappeared presently in the mouth of Joey's ravine, came out again later and rode on. That was Lee Hollister, heading toward Turkey Gulch.

Slanty crept out from his hiding place and dodged cautiously back to the hollow where his horse was picketed.

Lee rode on, unaware of that stealthy movement. Somewhere above him the crack of a rifle came. His head jerked toward the sound, and down again. He swayed slowly, groping with his hands, and then toppled and slid down.

Minutes passed. There was no further sound of movement, no sign of life but Lee Hollister's patient horse standing by a sprawling, inert body.

Slanty waited a little longer assured himself that his horse was well screened from observation, hid his rifle in a thicket and went cautiously down to where his victim lay.

Slanty bent down and jerked the fallen man over on his back and felt for a sign of life.

It was there, a faint, tired stir. "Hard to kill, ain't ye? Well, I'm fixin' ye this time. Le's see what's on ye, first."

Something crisp and crackling answered Slanty's marauding paw.

There were two letters from Matt Blair—he scowled suspiciously at these—a snapshot of Virginia, and then toppled and slid down. "em, did ye? There's goin' to be one more cave-in at the old Bonanza, an' ye're goin' to be under it, or back of it, or thereabouts. When ye're minded, ye'll be bones, an' it'll be old Bradish's job to explain ye."

Slanty arose, chuckling derisively. He seemed to have some convenient cache here, for he found a bit of candle, lit it, stuck it in the neck of a bottle and looked around approvingly. The stage was set for a blast which would send a mass of rock and rubble down to crush a helpless man or imprison him in slow torment until he died. Still Slanty lingered, licking hungry lips over the flavor of revenge.

The wounded man's eyelids flickered and were still. Slanty caught the movement and bent over him with a grin.

"Wakin' up, Lee? Ye—"

"I understand more than you know."

ginia—he snickered coarsely—and a legal looking paper. A deed. Slanty's eyes bulged.

"I'll make Bradish pay high for this."

He started to put the deed in his pocket and caught sight of something on the folded paper. It was the smeared imprint of a bloody thumb. Slanty scowled and glared at his hand. His irritation at this mishap made him that much rougher as he dragged the unconscious man upward and heaved him over the saddle of the waiting horse.

Midway of the gulch he turned, gliding like a snake, and led Brimstone up toward a ragged black hole, the mouth of Matt Blair's Bonanza mine.

In forty-five seconds there was no sign of Slanty Gano or Lee Hollister, and a riderless horse, with the sting of a lash on his flanks, was trotting swiftly down Turkey Gulch.

Inside the tunnel, Slanty jerked the limp body over his shoulder and headed deeper into the mine. Some distance in, where the way seemed entirely blocked, he dropped his burden, picked a crowbar from a shell lost in the darkness near the roof, and pried several tumbled rocks aside. With a grunt of satisfaction he picked up the wounded man again and Blair's precious samples, the ones that never got to the Assay Office at all. Didn't think Slanty Gano'd be smart enough to switch

The word jerked in a smother snarl. Quick hands leaped at his throat. Lee was struggling to his feet, panting and fighting. Slanty, caught unawares, gave way for a step or two. Then battering blows came, beating a wounded man at close range. A smashing blow landed in Lee's face and he sagged and crumpled. Retreating steps, the clang of a crowbar, a grinding sound, floating somewhere in a dim sea of weakness, Lee knew vaguely that Slanty had pried the big rocks back over the opening, shutting him in.

Under his cheek was something lumpy and rough. His fingers groped over it. Rocks in burial, gritty with earth! These must be Matt's samples, that had never reached their destination. Lee carried him through the opening, dropping him once more, like a sack of meal.

He struck a match and held it close to the pallid face. Slanty settled back on his heels, tauntingly conversational. "You're right alongside of Matt shoved them into his pocket, and with a dogged attempt at haste began to crawl away from the menace of the blast—farther and farther back into the old mine, dizzy from the loss of blood, with a film before his eyes and a white-hot purpose in his grain.

"Oh God, let me live long enough for this!" Back of him there was a sputtering fuse. Outside there was quiet, dusk falling, a man running. The man dodged behind rocks and scrub, slipped into a fringe of junipers and crouched to listen. It came a moment later, the dull boom of a blast.

Life had to be faced. Virginia dragged herself back to the realization of that, and went slowly toward the hall. Mrs. Archer, tearful and incoherent, came toward her niece with outstretched hands.

"Oh my dear I've just heard!" "Please! I don't want to talk about it," Virginia said tensely. She went on, leaving Mrs. Archer indignant and perturbed, but she had yet to pass Stanley. He stood in her path, urgently pleading.

"Virginia, let me explain. I only did it to save you from a terrible mistake. You don't understand—"

"I do. I understand more than you know and I think you are the foulest, most contemptible thing I have ever seen. Get out of my way!" Without another word Virginia went on to her father's old office and shut the door behind her.

The quiet of the little room closed around her like a protecting arm. It was easier to disbelieve that hideous accusation in this place where her father's presence still lived, genial and kind.

There was only one relief from the turmoil in her mind, and that was in work. Her father's papers, for instance. There was a closet full of them, and there might be something about Lee. She carried armfuls over to the desk.

It was slow work. Some of it was poignant; much of it was dull, as old bills and papers must be. She sighed, sorting them briskly into better order. A pile of old check books caught her eye. She pulled them toward her, scanning dates with a sudden impulse to check up the amounts that he had sent her during lean years when he had been so hard pressed.

"T. Ellison Archer $5,000." "Adele M. Archer $2,800." She reached for her pencil.

When it was finished she looked wearily down at a sordid little history, check after check, made out to her aunt and uncle during the years when she had lived in their home. With damning accuracy they tallied with her recollection of various acts of generosity on their part—the coming out dance that they had given for her, the first trip to Europe, the second, the summer at Narrangansett, the time Aunt Adele had taken her to Palm Beach.

Someone tapped at the door, and her aunt came in. "Virginia dear, I am so distressed for you. I simply can't keep silent any longer. Of course you can't stay after this horrible scandal."

"Why not? It's my home, and it's Lee's also if he wants to come."

"But Virginia, you couldn't live here alone—with all these rough men! And you know our home is open to you, darling, just as it always has been."

For answer Virginia pushed a sheet of paper toward her. It was closely written with figures and dates and names.

"Not quite as it always was," she said in a bitter voice. "My father isn't here to pay these any more, without even being given the credit for his generosity..."

Her aunt started to speak, stopped, hesitated, and then went hurriedly out of the door. Humiliation burned dully in her cheeks, and she stifled a sob.

Virginia did not appear at dinner, but sent her excuses by Ling.

She did not even attempt to sleep that night. Moonlight came, bathing the valley in silver. The silver was beginning to pale before she flung herself across the bed, still dressed, wondering if she could ever sleep again.

She raised her head at the sound of pounding hoof beats. They were distant, but coming nearer. That was racing speed. The sound swept past, swerved toward the bunk house and stopped.

(To Be Continued)

Citron

Citron, Apr. 1.—There was a very severe rain and hail storm in this community Saturday evening.

Calvin Wyatt and family moved to their newly-purchased home last week, near Laurel Springs, known as the Will Bell place. Everette Swaim and family from North Wilkesboro were visitors among relatives in this section Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Myers and son, Cleve, and Ray Long and sister, Wilma, made a business trip to North Wilkesboro Saturday.

Rev. Calvin Childress preached some very interesting sermons Saturday night and Sunday at Pine Fork Church. A large crowd attended each service.

Miss Ivagrace Hoppers spent Sunday night with Wilma Long. Everette Hoppers, who has been in Pennsylvania, is spending some time with home folks now.

Elder Willie Hamm, H. B. Pruitt and Robert Taylor made a business trip to North Wilkesboro Saturday.

Fletcher Richardson, who has been very sick for some time, is able to be out again.

Grady Pruitt and family moved from this section to Sparta the past week-end.

Robert Hoppers was a visitor in North Wilkesboro Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dancy spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Rush Long.

Cherry Lane

Cherry Lane, Apr. 1.—Miss Beatrice Spicer, of Gastonia, spent the week-end at home.

Mrs. Peggy Edwards, of Sparta, has been spending the past few days with her sister, Mrs. R. L. Hanks.

Miss Louise Miles spent Friday night with Miss Lucille McKnight. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Goodman, of Winston-Salem, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Caudill.

Paul Choate and Miss Clara Mae Jolly visited Miss Jolly's father in Mt. Airy hospital Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Spicer are planning to go to Wyoming soon, where they will make their home. J. R. Miles visited S. M. Jolly Sunday, who is in the Mt. Airy hospital.

Mrs. Irene Moore is spending a few days with relatives here.

Woodrow Spencer, of West Virginia, spent the week-end with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Smith, of Devotion, visited their parents, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Stamper visited Mrs. Stamper's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edd Hendrix, of Galax Va., Sunday.

Miss Nellie Ayers, who has been working in Elkin has returned home.

Roaring Gap

Roaring Gap, Apr. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. Leo Porter and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Royal made a business trip to Winston-Salem last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Lyon visited Mr. and Mrs. Von Edwards Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Letcher Royal and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Irvin visited Mr. and Mrs. Earl Royal Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Coley Fulp, of Elkin, visited Mrs. Fulp's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mack Roberts, over the week-end.

J. T. Inskeep was in Greensboro last week for the golf tournament.

Skilled WATCH REPAIRING
on fine WATCHES
All work guaranteed. Lowest prices.
See our line of Jewelry.
ALLEGHANY WATCH CO.
Sparta, N. C.

Legal Notice

LAND SALE

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain deed of trust executed March 22, 1930 by L. E. Gentry to W. M. Allen, Trustee, and recorded in Book 16, page 89, in the office of the Register of Deeds, of Alleghany County, North Carolina, and default having been made of the payment of the indebtedness secured by said deed of trust, I, the undersigned trustee will on the 16th day of April, 1940, at 2:00 o'clock P. M. at the courthouse door, in Sparta, N. C., sell at public auction for cash to the highest bidder the following described property, to-wit:

My 1/4 undivided interest in the land described below:

BEGINNING at a small white oak by road, Young corner and with her line S. 45 deg. E. 38 1/2 poles to a Spanish Oak, thence S. 15 1/2 deg. E. 15 poles to a white oak at the gate, S. 53 1/2 deg. E. 23 poles to two white oaks on bank of creek and with said creek S. 76 deg. E. 4 poles, S. 40 deg. E. 4 poles and leaving creek S. 83 1/2 deg. E. 12 poles to a white oak; thence S. 100 poles with an old marked line to a stake, thence E. 5 poles to a white oak, thence S. 2 deg. W. 90 poles to a stake in old line, thence N. 83 deg. W. 36 poles to a Spanish oak, thence N. 20 poles to a chestnut oak; thence N. 70 deg. W. 92 1/2 poles to a small white oak N. 27 deg. W. 85 1/2 poles to a gate post, N. 50 deg. E. 34 poles to a gate post N. 30 deg. W. 26 poles to a stake, N. 26 1/2 deg. W. 40 poles to a stake, N. 12 deg. E. 32 1/2 poles to a stake in Public Road and with same 72 1/2 deg. E. 4 poles N. 87 1/2 deg. E. 6 poles N. 69 deg. E. 14 poles N. 57 1/2 deg. E. 10 poles E. 10 poles S. 79 1/2 deg. E. 1 1/2 poles to a stake in Young's line and with their lines and road S. 43 deg. E. 14 poles S. 63 1/2 deg. E. 14 poles, North 79 deg. E. 9 poles N. 54 1/2 deg. E. 13 poles to the beginning. Containing 183 acres more or less. Same being land willed to me by Joseph Gentry, W. M. ALLEN, Trustee, Hoke F. Henderson, Attorney 4tc-11T

IT HOLDS FIRST PLACE in Pep, Power and Pick-up among all low-priced cars!

1st in Value, just as it's 1st in Sales!

$659

MASTER 85 BUSINESS COUPE

You drive the leader when you drive a Chevrolet for '40—the leader in pep, power and pick-up—and the leader in style, stamina and sales!

It holds first place in acceleration—first place in hill-climbing—first place in all-round performance with all-round economy—among all cars in its price range.

That's why Chevrolet for '40 is first in sales... why more people buy Chevrolets than buy any other make of car... and why your Chevrolet dealer strongly recommends that you eye it—try it—buy it—today!

LEADER IN SALES... 8 OUT OF THE LAST 9 YEARS

"CHEVROLET'S First Again!"

Castevens Motor Co.

SPARTA, N. C. opp. High School SPARTA, N. C.

Eye It.. Try It.. Buy It!

Again DR. MILES NERVINE

—makes good

Hundreds Of Thousands Of Times Each Year Dr. Miles Nervine Makes Good

When you are wakeful, jumpy, restless, when you suffer from Nervous Irritability, Nervous Headache, Sleeplessness, or Excitability, give DR. MILES NERVINE a chance to make good for YOU.

Don't wait until nerves have kept you awake two or three nights, until you are restless, jumpy and cranky. Get a bottle of Dr. Miles Nervine the next time you pass a drug store. Keep it handy. You never know when you or some member of your family will need it.

At Your Drug Store:
Small Bottle 25¢
Large Bottle $1.00
Dr. Miles Nervine is also made in Effervescent Tablet form.

FACTS YOU NEVER KNEW!!

DURING THE MIDDLE AGES, THE MANUFACTURE OF GOLD AND SILVER INKS FROM METALLIC POWDERS WAS AN EXTENSIVE AND LUCRATIVE INDUSTRY. THE ILLUMINATED MANUSCRIPTS WHICH REMAIN, ATTEST TO THE HIGH DEGREE OF PERFECTION TO WHICH THIS ART WAS CARRIED...

THE DYAKS OF N.W. BORNEO FORBID THEIR YOUNG WARRIORS TO EAT THE FLESH OF VENISON WHICH THEY RESERVE FOR THE ELDERS OF THE TRIBE. THEY BELIEVE THAT ANY WARRIOR PARTAKING OF THIS DELICACY WILL ACQUIRE THE DEER'S TIMIDITY!

I FEEL A PURPLISH GRAY TODAY

COLORS CAN RULE YOUR MOODS AND TEMPER AND ARE REVEALED BY SCIENCE TO HAVE A VITAL EFFECT ON HEALTH AND HAPPINESS. COLORS LIKE REDS AND BLUES ARE BEING USED WITH MARKED SUCCESS IN TREATING INFANTILE PARALYSIS!

By Bob Dart