

Tobacco Still Under Conservation Program

E. Y. Floyd, AAA executive officer at State College, reminds North Carolina farmers that the vote rejecting tobacco marketing quotas did not affect the agricultural conservation program for tobacco.

"Each tobacco grower can earn a payment on the normal production of his acreage allotment by planting within the allotment, unless he also grows cotton and knowingly overplants his cotton allotment," Floyd said.

"If a tobacco grower overplants," he said, "deductions will be made from his tobacco payment. The deduction will be made not only from the payment calculated on the normal production of his tobacco allotment, but also from the conservation payment that otherwise might be due on cotton, peanuts, and other crops and for soil-building practices."

Wooten Best, 14, Dies Following A Three-Day Illness

Young Boy Was Member of Prominent Families of Goldsboro and Wayne County

Funeral services for Wooten Best, 14, member of a prominent Wayne county family, who died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Best, in the Thompson Chapel community last Thursday evening, were conducted at the home Saturday morning by the Rev. Walter C. Ball, pastor of St. Paul Methodist Church. Interment was in the family cemetery near the home. His death followed a three days' illness of pneumonia. Young Best was the only child of his parents and the only grandchild of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wooten Bizzell of Goldsboro. He was a Wooten grandson of Major Best of the Thompson Chapel community, and a nephew of Misses Myrtle, Alice, Mattie, and Laura Bizzell, of Goldsboro.

I ONLY HEARD!
By ISABELLE BADDOUR

Eli Legget says he lives in the Orphan Home apartments, but if things keep up the way they are now, he will move into the Orphan Home.

He bends his neck a little bit, The barber begins to shave, A friend of the barber passes by, The barber stops to wave.

He surely does look silly And I think he'd rather die Than to be caught just sitting there When that cute little trick comes by.
