

*A word of caution
from the One man
that knows*

"Don't be Too SURE!"

Foch fought the Germans through four years and no man in the world is better able to judge of Teuton treachery and Prussian perfidy than he.

A thousand times the Hun has broken his promise. The armistice was followed by a frenzy of Prussian reform. There are Hun forces still craftily at work and there is an ugly menace confronting us and our boys who guard the Rhine.

Are we secure against a second avalanche? Marshal Foch says: "Don't be too sure!"
