It was announced that the Post had already gone over the top in its annual membership campaign and that ex-service men throughout the section are showing more interest in, and giving more support to the organization than ever before. A number of visiting Legionnaires from neighboring cities were introduced and welcomed. Commander Garvin outlined the objectives of the local Post for the coming year. They included better fellowship, among the ex-service men of the community, better care for the disabled veterans, and more active and enthusiastic support of all civic affairs and undertakings of this community. The whole body seemed permeated with a spirit of pep and good fellowship.

After the business meeting was over Prof. Hendrix presented the local High School band in a number of marches and semi-classical numbers which received much applause and commendation. The band under the direction of Prof. Hendrix assisted by Miss Virginia Parsons, head of the music department of the local schools is an organization of young musicians showing ability, training and versatility. The Legion extended their thanks and wholehearted support and commend them as being worthy of the support and praise of the whole community.

Miss Rachel Goforth, with her usual charm and grace, gave a very appropriate reading which was appreciated greatly by the Legionnaires. Two duet numbers were played by the Mauney twins, two very young pianists under the direction of Miss Parsons. These numbers received a big round of applause.

Refreshments were served and after the meeting was all over a number of the Legionnaires settled down into a fraternal smoker, making plans for a big year with an occasional vivid story from out the dim past. A successful year is predicted for the local post of the American Legion.
