GRADUATION

Thirty-nine young men and women will this week finish their work in the local High School. To some it will be the end of their education as far as books are concerned. To others it will only be the beginning. They have the world ahead of them. A world of many opportunities but a world which requires a great many things in return. They have an opportunity to be of service to the community and to the world in the future.

At any rate these young men and women who have come this far deserve to be congratulated. We are glad for them and wish them a long and successful life of service.

PRIMARIES ARE PARTY FUNCTIONS

With the approach of the party primaries on June 6th it is well to consider their purposes and proper protection. Many people apparently think of a primary as simply another election in which everybody has a right to participate. Such is not the case. A Democrat has no more right to take part in a Republican primary or a Republican to participate in a Democratic primary than either to attend the party conventions of the other. If you are a Republican and honestly intend to change your party affiliation (or vice versa) then it is your right and privilege to take part in the selection of the party nominees.

Attorney General Seawell has issued a timely ruling that Republicans will not be allowed to participate in Democratic primaries, nor Democrats in Republican primary contests.

But, if you are registered as a Democrat, it is not only your privilege, but your duty to vote, Saturday. Let not the person who does not take enough interest to vote in the Primary Saturday utter one word of criticism against the party's nominee.

P. S. TO DR. HIGHSMITH

In addition to the two years of French required of pupils in the Negro school here, pupils who for the most part need to master much more practical accomplishments than that of being able to patter "polly voos Frenchy" a more ridiculous situation was exposed by Mrs. Bingham in her curriculum story yesterday. The State prescribes the course of study for all the schools. For the larger schools, a number of elective courses are provided, but in the smaller schools, schools which have only a minimum of money to run on, college preparatory courses only are offered.

And what does that mean? Why, that in the country high schools and in the Negro high schools boys and girls are prepared for the college training that only a few out of every thousand can hope to receive. Instead of fitting them to take up life on the farm or life in the store or life in the kitchen, they are fitted uselessly for further academic learning.

Obviously, this is all wrong. Courses in preparation for life should be standard, courses in preparation for higher education elective where possible. As Mrs. Bingham hints, before we try to teach the school children to think it might be wiser to teach the educational authorities themselves to use their heads.—Charlotte News.

Crop Rotations Build Soils; Prevent Erosion

Erosion control and maintenance of soil fertility depends to a large extent upon suitable rotation of crops, according to A. H. Veasey, chief agronomist of the Soil Conservation Service in North Carolina.

"This state is facing no greater problem than that of planning and adopting crop rotations," he said.

Veasey recommends rotations including grasses, clover, lespedezas, and other legumes which add organic matter and nitrogen to the soil thereby improving its chemical and mechanical condition. These crops also increase the water holding capacity of the soil.

Close-growing grasses and legumes bind and hold the soil and reduce to a minimum losses from washing.

On North Carolina's badly eroded areas, where the fertility has been either washed away or used up by planting the same crop in the same field year after year, Veasey considers grasses and legumes necessities for rebuilding the soil.

HERE and THERE

By Haywood E. Lynch

I found out this week that Mrs. B. M. Ormand used to work on The Herald. I knew Mrs. Ormand was a very clever lady, and now I know why: I asked her when did she work on the home-town sheet and she said, "It was back in the '90's."

P. D. Herndon is making some mighty pretty rugs at Fabrics, Inc. If you haven't seen them it is certainly worth your time to go by and give them the once-over. I am sure P. D. will be glad to show them to you. He did to me and sold me one.

Pretty Sight: The graduates receive their diplomas Monday night.

Some of the candidates will soon be able to tell how many liars there are hereabouts.

I actually went all the way from the office to the bank today without shaking hands with a single candidate.

Ask George Mauney what the conversation always drifts around to when a bunch of men get to talking.

Taxation's High Toll

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

That government is best which governs least.

This was one of the axioms of our sturdy Americans of earlier generations. It's being forgotten today. Americans are getting a lot more government than their fathers got. And they're paying a lot more for it, too.

How much more? A recently published long-range study of governmental costs offers some interesting answers. It shows, for example:

That in 1850 approximately one cent out of every dollar earned in the United States was spent on the upkeep of government—federal, state and local.

That by 1900 the proportion had risen to six cents out of every such dollar.

That by 1929 government was taking twelve cents out of the dollar.

And finally:

That by 1934 the toll had mounted to nineteen cents out of each income dollar.

Nor is that the entire story. Actually, government is spending more than it collects—and has been doing so for years. In 1934, the figures reveal, it spent approximately 35 cents out of every dollar earned by its citizens. The difference, of course, helped swell public debt.

What is the effect of this rising toll on the productive enterprise of our country? Let's consider it.

Money spent by government is, in general, unproductive. Seldom does it create new opportunities for lasting employment. But money spent in private enterprise—in building homes, in expanding stores, in operating farms or factories—creates new wealth, new opportunities, new jobs.

To divert great sums from productive enterprises and individual pay envelopes into the hands of government spenders is, therefore, to limit every citizen's opportunity not only to work and earn, but to enjoy the full fruits of his toil. It is a barrier to re-employment.

America enjoyed its greatest expansion when government was economical, and taxation small. It cannot recapture that swift progress so long as it is handicapped by a millstone of official extravagance and waste. Economy in government is, therefore, far more than a popular demand. It is an essential to both the progress of our nation and the prosperity of its people.

ready registered to attend the camp which will open on June 15th. Prior to the arrival of the Scouts at the camp a Leaders Training Conference will be held starting with supper on Saturday June 13th, and concluding with noon dinner on Sunday 14th. More than 100 Scout Leaders are expected at the conference.

J. R. CLINE

Sheriff Of Cleveland County, Office In Court House, Shelby.

Years of experience, bravery, fairness and willingness to meet any circumstances or emergency as it may arise, are vital elements of a competent Sheriff of a county, and Sheriff Cline is regarded as just this type of officer by his many friends in this section.

The Sheriff who attends strictly to his duties, may be called out at any hour of the night and may run afoul of the most desperate bandit.

Thus being Sheriff is not the easiest and most pleasant occupation, yet the public seldom fully appreciates the large part the Sheriff plays in safeguarding its interest in so many different ways. Ofttimes one finds it impossible to collect a just debt, and suit is instituted and when recognized by the courts, a judgment is entered. It is then up to the Sheriff to see this judgment is satisfied. Sheriff Cline has for years been one of the most dependable and esteemed men in Cleveland county. He has a host of friends because of his fair spirit towards his fellow-men.
