Washington Snapshots

phness was based upon the fact that billions are almost beyond human comprehension, and that they mean nothing to the average man.

But that happiness was short-lived. First, the Associated Press calculated that the figures showed that out of each $1 spent by the federal government last year, 54 cents was borrowed. In other words, that Uncle Sam went into debt to the tune of 54 cents out of each dollar he spent because his taxes were bringing in only 46 cents.

That was followed by other calculations making the picture more depressing. It was figured, for instance, that the $4,764,000,000 deficit meant an increase of $38 in the debt on each man, woman, and child in the country, or an increase of $152 on each average family of four.

Next, the $33,779,000 debt was translated into similar figures, showing that Uncle Sam's total debt amounted to $269 for each person, or $1,076 for the average family. And that the total cost of running the federal government last year was $70.48 per person, or $282 per family.

The worst of it, from the standpoint of the cover-uppers, was that Washington correspondents then began to emphasize the tax angle, pointing out that the only way Uncle Sam could pay his debt was by taking $1.076 in taxes from every family in the land.

These computations made the new $800,000,000 tax bill look insignificant. That bill was put forward as necessary to keep the federal government in sound financial condition. It meant additional taxes averaging $28 per year on each family. But what good is it, some correspondents asked, to levy new taxes of $28 on each family when the total new debt averages $152 per family? Because despite the new taxes, each family would be $114 deeper in debt at the end of another year like the last one.

J. R. McCarl, controller general of the United States for fifteen years, won the title "Watchdog of the Treasury" when he was in that job. Now that he is out, folks in Washington are calling him a model of restraint.

True, when his term expired, he made caustic remarks about the mushroom growth of bureaucratic agencies, and about extravagance in government. But he did not deal in personalities although he had ample reason.

Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, for example, did not like the microscopic intensity with which McCarl scrutinized work-relief expenses. So one day he loaded two trucks with barrels filled with vouchers, sent them to McCarl, and asked their approval in 48 hours.

McCarl's staff worked overtime and, to Hopkins's surprise, finished the job in 48 hours. And McCarl has not yet said anything publicly about that or many other similar episodes.

Mr. McCarl is slated to aid Senator Byrd of Virginia in a study to be presented to the next congress designed to curb useless government bureaus and duplications of activity. In other words, to put government on a business basis.
