Reverend Buzhardt has made an unusual record since turning away from a saw mill in 1920, a married man with a grammar school education—to prepare for the gospel ministry. Fighting his way through college, he came into the ministry in 1927 with the flaming zeal that drove him on through the years. From his birth in the mill village at Newberry, South Carolina, to his present pastorate of a prominent church in Charlotte is the distance travelled because of his love for God and his fellowman. The people of the community are cordially invited to enjoy the ministry of this understanding servant of God.

Washington Snapshots by JAMES PRESTON

(Opinions Expressed in This Column Are Not Necessarily the Views of This Newspaper.)

A lot of chickens are coming home to Washington roosts. In some cases strangely enough, they don't receive such rousing welcomes.

Take, for example, Don Stevens. A year ago he was hired by the American Federation of Labor as a special organizer for the American Newspaper Guild.

But out in Chicago, at a meeting of the local Guild, he made a speech asserting that he thought the Guild should affiliate with the C. I. O. instead of the A. F. of L. The first thing he knew, he was fired.

Now Stevens threatens to bring charges against the American Federation of Labor, under the Wagner Labor Act, for attempting to "influence" and "coerce employees in the matter of determining whether they will join a union and which union it shall be.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

At the End of the Line

By IRVIN S. COBB

MRS. CARR was Irish — her first name was Honora and her husband's first name was Terrence — and she had a conspicuously large family in a neighborhood where large families were the rule and not the exception. Her twelfth had just been born. Ten days after the latest edition had arrived the mother ventured out upon her front stoop. An acquaintance of a whimsical turn of mind happened along and saw her sitting there and halted.

"Good maw'nin', ma'am," he hailed.

"Good maw'nin', Mr. Donovan," answered the matron.

"Well, I heard the news," he said, jovially, "tis quite a string of cars ye have now, ma'am."

"Yes," she said, crisply, "but the lasht wan was the caboose."

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

SINCE Calvin Coolidge ceased to be President the boys in Washington have been re-telling a lot of jokes about how Cal saved up words at the White House.

One of the stories is about a newspaper man that met the President away from Washington, out in the Black Hills, maybe it was. This here reporter thought he might get the boss to talk a little when he was maybe off his guard, so far from home.

So Cal answered every question with, "No." Or he would say, "I can't say anything about that," or "Don't quote me."

Finally, when the reporter was about to go away, he says to Coolidge, "Say, Mr. President, ain't you going to give me anything at all to print?"

"No," says Coolidge, "and please remember that everything I haven't said it not for publication either!"
