

SUMMER SESSION . . .

Met that old bound of the court-noon, E. L. Campbell, on the street early yesterday morning, and the first thing he said was, "If you're going to wear a shirt like that, why don't you get one that's long enough to hang down to your knees? Where upon I informed him that I had been thinking about adding about a foot of red satin to it. It reminded me of the day, a month or so ago, when someone asked Mr. Campbell how he could stand to wear his coat every day in such heat. He replied that he was afraid he might get a cold if he pulled it off. He says that if you wear it every day, winter, spring, summer and fall, you get used to it, and the heat isn't so bad. And that reminded me that I've never seen any lawyer without a coat. Maybe Mr. Campbell can explain that to me?"

While further up the street. Hoy to me the news that Charley Ballard the local Junior Legion baseball whizz, had lost Tuesday. It was the first time that Ballard has lost this year, and came after a brilliant winning streak of twelve games. Ballard according to local fans, (I haven't seen him play so far this season) has developed a beautiful fast ball. He has, to date, beaten everything in the section, and getting knocked out in the fourth chorus Tuesday doesn't harm him any in our estimation.

Imagine anyone wanting to get up before a mike and say to a crowd: "Ladies and gentlemen, it is with the greatest of pleasure that I now present that eloquent enigma of oral discourse, that wizard of whimsical witicism, that master of Masters of Ceremonies, Mr. Charlie Thomasson!" That's exactly what Skimp Stowe almost brought upon himself, then declined in the last few minutes last Friday. He had asked to be permitted to introduce Mr. Thomasson at the band concert, then withdrew from public sight (Oh, No, not Skimp!) and wouldn't do it. But then, as Mr. Thomasson says, he doesn't need an introduction. If he got one, it might hamper his style.

Lawyer J. R. Davis caused a minor sensation at the band concert last Friday when he arrived in a Model "T". The lawyer, with his clear and in his glory, sat beside Bill and looked just as if the "T" were a Rolls.

Things I'd like to forget: The fact that this paper goes to press tonight — and that there's still an empty front page gaping at me when I go into the shop . . . How silly I felt when I walked up to the cashier of a movie once and asked "What kind of shorts have you got on tonight?"

4-H Club Boys and Girls To Gather In Raleigh

RALEIGH, July 17.—Approximately 1,000 rural boys and girls, representing the 46,000 4-H Club members in North Carolina, will gather at State College July 24 for the annual 4-H Short Course. The event will continue through July 29. L. R. Harrell, state 4-H Club leader, and Miss Frances MacGregor, assistant state leader, are in charge of arrangements.

Registration will begin Monday morning at 10 o'clock, and the first session will be held that evening in Pullen Hall. It will be an informal program. Col. John W. Harrelson, administrative dean of State College will welcome the delegates at the assembly period Tuesday morning, after which group conferences and class instruction will begin.

Dr. Stanley Smith, director of music in Raleigh schools, will have charge of the musical program during the Short Course. He will train a chorus of 100 voices to participate in a Pageant of Progress which will be staged in Riddick Stadium on Thursday evening.

Among the principal speakers during the week will be Dr. Carl Taylor, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, and Dr. Jane S. McKimmon, assistant director of the State College Extension Service which is sponsoring the Short Course.

Team demonstrations, recreational programs in the evenings, and tours of the college campus will be other features of the week. New officers of the State 4-H organization will be elected and installed in a candle-lighting ceremony on Friday evening in Riddick Stadium.

Death Ends Aid Grants For 4692 Aged Carolinians

Death terminated the government grants of 19 North Carolinians 100 years old or more during the fiscal year ending in June, Nathan H. Yellin, State director of public assistance announced this week.

Figures compiled by J. S. Kirk, statistician for the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare, disclosed a total of 4,692 public assistance cases closed during the year with death being the reason assigned to the 1,827 men and 1,511 women marked off the lists.

Oldest of the 19 Tar Heel centenarians to die was Sarah Gudger, Negro woman of Asheville, who received a government grant for the last 16 months of 127 years of life. Majority of these dying were between the ages of 66 and 83, the figures showed.

One hundred and seventeen old people became self-supporting during the year, while 200 were admitted to public institutions and the relatives of 413 more assumed responsibility for their care.

One hundred and thirty one persons never received a government grant before death closed their case on the rolls, while 19 received their payments from combined Federal, State and county funds for two years or more before their death. There were 1,771 who were paid for a period ranging from 12 to 17 months.

Of the 2,148 white persons dying during the year, 1,202 were men and 946 were women. Nine men and 11 women made up the total of 29 deceased members of the Indian race, while the 1,170 Negro deaths were accounted for by 616 men and 554 women.

Relatives of 2,298 dependent North Carolina children became able through their own efforts to take them off the government rolls. Nine deaths of the dependent child were listed among the total of 4,155 cases closed during the year, Kirk's figures showed.

Seventy five children were admitted to public institutions, while 120 reached the maximum age under which the law allowed payments to their relatives. Children averaged 2.44 per family in the 1,708 cases closed.

FOREIGN MONEY
NEW YORK.—Foreign governments have spent approximately $31,000,000 on buildings and exhibits at the New York World's Fair.

ELECTRIC EEL
NEW YORK.—The electric eel, one of the exhibits of the New York Zoological Society at the New York World's Fair, is capable of delivering an electrical impulse of 400 volts for 1-1000 of a second or 110 volts for one minute. The eel possesses sufficient electrical energy to electrocute a man and is always handled with rubber gloves.

EATING AROUND THE WORLD
NEW YORK.—Visitors to the New York World's Fair can literally eat their way around the world. Twenty two of the foreign pavilions have their own restaurants featuring native dishes and delicacies. The majority feature popular priced items though a few serve expensive and elaborate meals.

COLD DRINK THERMOMETER
NEW YORK.—The ten behind the dozens of cold drink counters sprinkled over the grounds of the New York World's Fair don't need to look at a thermometer to know when the day is hot. They can gauge the temperature by the speed with which the nickels roll in for each pop.

AIR-CONDITIONED PANDA
NEW YORK.—Pandora, the giant panda in the New York Zoological Society's Exhibit at the New York World's Fair went off her feed during the first spell of summer weather but Dr. Roderick MacDonald, director of the exhibit, had an air-conditioning unit installed in her quarters and Pandora is eating again.

31,000,000 RUBIES ON DISPLAY
NEW YORK.—An exhibit of 31,000,000 rubies worth about $1,000,000 has been opened to the public in the Consumers Building at the New York World's Fair. The jewels in six showcases were assembled by Jamshedji Ahamad, who had them sent to the Fair from Ceylon.

57c IS "Y" AVERAGE
NEW YORK.—The average check for the first 200,000 persons served at the "Y" restaurant at the New York World's Fair was 57c.

GUARDING DIAMONDS
NEW YORK.—A heavy guard of policemen and detectives is constantly on duty at the Belgian Pavilion of the New York World's Fair where diamonds worth millions are on exhibition. And there is a machine-gun concealed behind a screen—just in case.

LINDBERGH-CARREL HEART
NEW YORK.—The famous Lindbergh Carrel Mechanical heart, the device on which the world-famous transatlantic flier collaborated with the world-famous scientist, is one of the focal points of interest in the Medical and Public Health Building at the New York World's Fair.

NEW YORK.—The 50 restaurants at the New York World's Fair can feed 10,000 persons at a single sitting. Most of them charge popular prices. The average luncheon, consisting of soup, meat, two vegetables, dessert and coffee, costs from 50 to 85 cents.

TEA MEN DRINK COFFEE
NEW YORK.—About 200 of the nation's leading tea executives concluded a two-day merchandising forum at the New York World's Fair by drinking coffee "for a change."

PHOTOGRAPHIC MAGIC
NEW YORK.—Mysteries of the photographic dark room are brought out in the open at the New York World's Fair. In two of the exhibits, photographic printers work behind amber glass instead of in the dark and the public can watch photographs being developed and printed.
