Tricks Used To Get Compensation Money

RALEIGH.—Purse strings are being drawn progressively tighter on the State Unemployment Compensation fund against the unscrupulous workers who would try trickery to get money not due them and fines and sentences for violators are becoming longer and heavier. Chairman Charles C. Powell of the Commission, points out.

Probably once a week, on the average, workers are indicted for drawing or attempting to draw benefits to which they have no legal right, and the courts of the State are giving them more and more trouble. Occasionally when a worker makes false representations (in ignorance of the law, local courts are lenient and let him off with a warning. But when one appears and it is in evidence that he willfully violated the law to get benefits the courts either assess a heavy fine or sentence him to the roads.

Recently, one Dudley Corbett, of Clinton, signed "continued-claims" for 11 weeks, stating that he had no earnings each week, and drew $6.50 a week, or $71.50 in benefits while his employer testified that he was employed each of the 11 weeks and drew in wages $107.00 during the time. In the Sampson County Recorder's Court he was found guilty and sentenced to six months in jail to be assigned to work on the roads.

Also, recently, one Hiawatha Johnson, colored, filed a claim and continued to report that he was unemployed, while evidence produced in the Hickory Municipal Court showed that he was employed and earning wages during the period of claimed unemployment. Although the claim had not progressed far enough for him to draw benefits, he was sentenced to 30 days on the roads, a sentence which was later changed to a fine and costs of $25.50, which he paid.

Our local employment offices and field forces are watching diligently to discover any abuse of the rights of workers and to keep the fund for those eligible to draw benefits. Chairman Powell said, "Occasionally, one will get by, for a time, but we have many ways to discover these frauds, sooner or later, and the violators must pay," he said.

Chickens, Like Humans Catch Cold In Fall

The advice that C. F. Parrish, Extension poultryman of N. C. State College, hands out to poultry raisers at this season of the year sounds like that of the family doctor to a mother of brood of children.

At the first signs of colds or bronchitis, give the poultry flock a dose epsom salts in the drinking water, Parrish advises. Also keep a supply of oil handy to use in case of an outbreak of disease, he adds.

The Extension specialist stresses the advisability of quarantining all birds returned from fairs and shows for at least ten days before returning them to the flock. He says this is one of the most frequent causes of outbreaks of colds in the poultry house; the show birds are often ill-housed at fairs and they develop bronchitis there, or enroute to and from the fair.

Parrish recommends the use of about three-fourths of a pound of epsom salts in the drinking water for each 100 birds. Do not leave the salts water before the flock longer than three hours, preferably the first thing in the morning, he says. Then start feeding a good grade of fish oil, such as cod liver oil or sardine oil, on the scratch grain. This oil, which is rich in Vitamin A, should be mixed fresh each day according to directions.

Imperial Muffins for the Week-End Guests

SO YOU'RE worried what to serve for breakfast when guests arrive this week-end?

Starting with the fruit, why not have sliced honeydew with sweet, red cherries scattered over it and over the plate—for appeal, you know. Or serve chilled, fresh apricots and seedless grapes on glass plates (on grape leaves, if you have them). Follow with eggs baked in bacon rings. And for this, simply ring muffin cups with bacon, drop in the egg, bake until the egg is set, and there you are, pretty and easy. It's taken for granted you'll make plenty of hot coffee.

To crown this summer breakfast—in name and flavor—make imperial muffins. They're easy as saying "cat" to mix up if you use the new, self-rising flour. Baking powder and salt are ready-mixed into it, thus a double saving of (1) price of these two ingredients, and (2) time in sifting them with the flour.

You can use your favorite muffin recipe with the new, self-rising flour, omitting both baking powder and salt. But for your aid, here is one that's foolproof. Remember, as with all muffins, to work fast and mix ingredients only enough to blend well.

Imperial Muffins

Cream 4 tablespoons fat and 3 tablespoons sugar together. Add 1 egg and stir in thoroughly (do not beat). Add 1 cup milk alternately with 2 cups new self-rising flour (sifted before measuring). Pour into well-greased muffin tins and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 20 minutes.

He's Prepared to do his Part!

The thought of preparedness is not new to Bell Telephone workers. In fact, the South's and the nation's vast telephone system is what it is today mainly because preparedness is one of the fundamental principles of the Bell System's policy. Telephone people are constantly at war with the elements, fire, flood and hurricane. They are prepared in advance to meet the emergency whenever and wherever danger strikes. Rapidly changing industrial demands—shifting populations—quick expansions in some places and contractions at others—ever-changing problems of supply and demand, are conditions under which all telephone people are accustomed to working. Years of experience in anticipating, planning for and meeting these exacting demands strengthen the confidence of telephone workers in their ability to provide for the needs of the South and the nation under any conditions that may arise.
