Orders For Forest Trees Should Be Placed Early

Last year 244 farmers were disappointed when they were unable to obtain 544,000 forest tree seedlings ordered through their county agents. The State Forest Nurseries, where the seedlings are grown, were unable to supply more than a million trees requested by farmers and others.
 With this in view, R. W. Graeber, Extension forester at N. C. State College, urges that farmers place their forest tree orders for the 1941 planting season at an early date. Already applications for more than 1,400,000 trees have been received by the State Department of Conservation and Development which operates the two State nurseries at Clayton near Raleigh and in Henderson county. The nurseries will have 5,400,000 trees available this year.
 County farm agents of the Extension Service have order blanks for the trees and they will be in a position to advise with farmers as to the correct species for climatic and soil conditions.
 The following species are available: Loblolly, longleaf, shortleaf, slash and white pine; black locust, cypress, white ash, yellow poplar, red cedar, and black walnut. No order will be filled for less than 500 of any one species, except black walnut for which the minimum order

Improvements Made In Farm Program

An important improvement in the Agricultural Conservation Program effective in 1941, has been announced by G. T. Scott, Johnston County farmer and chairman of the State AAA Committee. It provides for more emphasis on the conservation phases of the program, makes the AAA program more adaptable to all farms in the State, encourages the production of food and feed crops, and should greatly reduce the cost of compliance.

General subletting allotments will be discontinued with the 1941 program and payments will be based upon the amount of soil building accomplished. Scott stated, The farmer who carries all soil building units will earn his maximum payment.

As an example of how the new plan works, Scott said: "Suppose Farmer Jones had set up for his farm a total farm payment of $100, made up of $50 for planting within special crop allotments and $50 to be earned for carrying out practices such as seeding legumes and grasses, winter cover crops and green manure crops, terracing, contour strip cropping, forestry practices, home gardening, application of liming materials, and the like.

If Farmer Jones only carries enough soil building practices to earn $40 of his soil building allowance, then he would only get $40 of his special allotment payments, giving Farmer Jones a final total payment of $80 instead of $100. That's because he earned only 80 percent of his soil building goal. Of course, if he carried out enough practices to earn his entire $50 in soil building allowance, he would receive his full $50 for planting within special crop allotments.

er will be 100 trees.
 Stock may be used only for forest planting, erosion control and windbreaks. It cannot be used for ornamental planting, and may not be resold.

The prices for black walnut seedlings $10 per thousand delivered and $8.50 per thousand F. O. B.; for white pines $3 delivered and 12.75 F. O. B.; for white pine transplants, $4 delivered and $3.50 F. O. B.; and for all other species $2 per thousand delivered and $1.50 per thousand F. O. B. the nursery.

MIGHTY FATHER (By H. Y. Belk)

Mid the crash and crush of kingdoms
 Lord keep our native lands free from war
 Let our liberty endure forever
 God of armies, Lord of battles.
 What care we do to stay this demon
 Shall our freedom be lost forever?
 Help us rend the tyrant's chains,
 God of armies, Lord of battles.
 While they blaze along England's shores
 Shall the stars and stripes be crushed to earth?
 Will we bow in mute obedience to this demon?
 God of armies, Lord of battles.
 London what a midnight Heel
 Piled in heaps and ruins
 While Hitler's night hawks spread death from the skies
 Protect our Capitol, God of armies,
 Lord of battles.

Washington Snapshots

 Those found guilty after a court trial of violating the Wagner Act. Congress steadfastly has refused to do even that. Meanwhile, facts continue to pile up proving the bias of the Labor Board. So Congress recently has shown no disposition to use government contracts to force agreement with arbitrary and capricious rulings of a Board which is continually under fire by the public.

Now, however, a new factor enters the picture. Sidney Hillman is vice president and a member of the executive board of the CIO. He also is the labor member of the National Defense Commission. Hillman has laid the groundwork for effecting a settlement without Congressional action. He got an informal opinion from the Attorney General that Labor Board findings are binding until reversed by a competent court.

It is only one step from that to forbidding contracts to those who are convicted by the prejudiced Labor Board. That is the issuance of instructions that all contracts include a stipulation that contractors will abide by rulings of the Board. But that step is a long one. The whole issue is a hot potato—so hot that the attorney general has scurried around and found a way of saying that he has not approved the long step. But as Washington sees it, once you start down a slide you reach the bottom pretty soon.

Impartial officials in the Army and Navy Department—the men who know most about how to get what the country needs for defense—have opposed the Lewis-CIO-Hillman idea continuously and strenuously. They may do so now.

It is pointed out by those who know whereof they speak that the basis primarily to be permitted to jeopardize the national defense program for the sake of forcing compliance with a law which the general public, newspapers, the great mass of labor, the national House of Representatives, and others think is a law needing amendment?

It would be just about as logical to say that a man about to appear in court to answer a traffic summons should not be conscripted.

The nation needs industrial cooperation and production. Unless industry can produce the weapons needed for national defense, the United States will be at the mercy of foreign aggressors. Yet the proposed plan would have forbidden the granting of many contracts already in effect Henry Ford, for instance, has a fixable contract for airplane engines. He also has pending in the courts a case brought against him by the Labor Board. If the Lewis-CIO-Hillman idea had been in effect Ford could not have signed a contract for those engines without agreeing to accept the biased Labor Board's rulings.

This new move has shaken the industrial world from top to bottom. It says that an employer in order to cooperate in the national defense program must admit that a finding against him by the Labor Board is a true one—in short, he must admit he is guilty BEFORE he has had his day in court.

Industry is cooperating and wants to cooperate in the national defense program. But obstacles like these bear heavily upon them.

National defense is at stake.
