

There's Winter Work In Gardens, Orchards

Plan now for your next year's garden, and prepare for planting early vegetable plants in February and March, advises H. R. Niswonger and L. P. Watson, horticulturists of the N. C. State College Extension Service.

They point out that November, December and January are not regarded generally as important for garden and orchard work, but there are many necessary things that can be done to best advantage during the winter months. The home garden and orchard do not demand a great amount of time, but they do

The Extension specialists make the following suggestions: Broadcast manure to be turned under in November or disced in early in the spring. If the garden is on clay soil break it in November to improve the physical condition. Repair fences or build new ones if the garden is in a new location.

Prune and spray all fruit trees and grape vines. Peach trees not treated for borers in October should have the borers removed now by hand. Cut posts and stakes and place conveniently to be used next summer to support running beans, tomatoes, and small fruits.
