they do not follow approved marketing practices," he asserted. Growers must adhere to United States basis upon which peas are generally bought and sold.

The condition of truck shipments of peas upon arrival, could be greatly improved if loads were top iced, particularly if moved in non-refrigerated units, Westcott said. Shipments of green peas are so widely distributed that peas are now available over much of the country almost throughout the entire year. With the improved methods of quick freezing and other types of preserving, growers must carefully grade and pack the fresh product from any one producing area.

The United States, once dependent upon foreign sources in a great many cases, now imports only about 5 percent of its dyes, and exports more than it buys from foreign countries.

Pea Shipments Slated May 12th

RALEIGH. — Volume shipments of North Carolina green peas to northern and eastern markets are scheduled about May 12, but unless farmers offer a better graded and more attractively packed product, they cannot expect to successfully compete with producers of other areas. Harry T. Westcott, marketing specialist of the State Department of Agriculture, reported recently.

On the eastern seaboard, North Carolina farmers are among the most important shippers of green peas, but they will be at a disadvantage when shipping in competition with other areas if
