The Reward of an Expert

By IRVIN S. COBB

IN THAT section of West Virginia which is mainly standing on end lived a mountain preacher known as Pa Jordan, who had never stirred from his native hills. In the fall, word came to Pa Jordan, that a party of Northern men were stopping at a nearby cabin, so that evening he put on his shoes and went over to call on the "furriners" who were spying out coal lands.

As they sat about the log fire Pa Jordan noticed that one of the strangers was wearing glasses and that he used them for reading as well as for other purposes.

"Mister," he said, "do you wear them specs all the time?"

"Yes."

"Ain't you got no other pair?"

"No."

"Well," said Pa Jordan, "it don't seem in nature to have specs that air both far-lookin' and nigh-seein' at the same time." He pondered over this miracle a moment and then continued jestingly: "But then, times is changin'—they's even changin' here. I kin remember when you could git a man to work fer you fer four bits a day. Now they won't take less'n a dollar and a half."

One of the party was a famous mining expert, who had been retained to examine and report on certain coal veins at the rate of a hundred dollars a day and his expenses. The man who owned the marvelous glasses pointed to the expert.

"This man gets more than a dollar and a half a day," he said.

"How much do you git, Mister?" asked Pa Jordan, turning to him.

"Well," said the expert, "sometimes I get as much as three dollars a day."

"For doin' what?"

For going around and looking at these coal prospects and measuring them."

"You git three dollars a day just fer lookin' at them here coal banks?"

"Yes."

"Why," said Pa Jordan, "all I got to say to that is even that much money you could walk fer look the night."

P. O. RECEIPTS BREAKS RECORD

Business at the Kings Mountain Post Office is humming according to W. E. Blakely, Postmaster, who stated that receipts for stamps, C. O. D.'s and Money Orders had broken all records in the history of the local office for the first quarter of the year and for each of the three months. "We are doing more business than we ever have" said the Postmaster.

Mr. Blakely also stated that the sales of Defense Bonds and Stamps were exceedingly good.

High School Wins Triangular Debates

The local high school debating team defeated the Mooresville and Newton teams Friday March 27 in the annual triangular debate which is sponsored each year by the Extension Division of the University of North Carolina. This is the first time in several years that Kings Mountain has won both the negative and the affirmative sides of the query and has thus been entitled to go to Chapel Hill to enter the final state-wide contest.

The state contest this year is to be held April 16 and 17. If arrangements for transportation can be satisfactorily made the local teams will probably attend.

The debate query this year is Resolved: That Union of Western Hemisphere Nations should be established.

Harvey Lanhter and James Throneburg, members of the team which defeated Mooresville, are defending the affirmative, and Charles Moss and Eugene Mathis, on the team which defeated Newton, are defending the negative. Mrs. Charlotte M. Shuford, of the High School English Department, is coaching the teams.

Editor Lynch Talks To Park-Grace P. T. A.

Haywood E. Lynch, Editor of The Herald, made a talk Wednesday afternoon to members of the Park-Grace Parent-Teacher Association. Mr. Lynch discussed how the average citizen could contribute in winning the war, and the importance of the parent-teacher associations in developing the young folks of today into the leaders of tomorrow.

Mrs. Carl Davidson's class won the use of the American Flag by having the largest number of parents present. The highlight of the meeting was the concert rendered by the Rythm Band. Mrs. Aubrey Clay had charge of the program and Mrs. Paul Mauney, President, presided during the business session.

School To Observe Two Days For Easter

"Blackberry Winter" Little Theatre Production

Rehearsals are under way for the next production to be staged by members of the Kings Mountain Little Theatre under the direction of Miss Mary Frances Horde. "Blackberry Winter," a three-acre Comedy drama, by Hubert Hayes will be presented in the High School Auditorium on the evening of April 23rd.

Admission will be 20c and 40c; reserved seats 25c and 50c. There are two seats on for the advance in price, the royalty is higher than that on plays given heretofore, and there is an amusement tax. Little Theatre members are working constantly to improve themselves and raise the standard of the plays given, so they feel that the theatre-going public will understand and approve of the higher admission price.

Here is abrief synopsis of "Blackberry Winter": Wanda, a poor Southern girl, is working here way thru her last year of college, doing part-work in the home of a classmate and has fallen in love with Alvin, the adopted son of the family. Her mother comes to town bringing Wanda's younger sister for Wanda to keep from then on. With her sister to keep, she can hardly marry Alvin. Then it seems equally certain she can never marry Alvin, for the little sister brings information that seems to prove that Alvin and Wanda have the same mother. Alvin returns from trying to solve the mystery in time to see Wanda win the honors due her, and everything ends happily with the spell of old Blackberry Winter broken.

Plan now to attend this outstanding attraction. Light refreshments will be served at intermission.

Graduating Class To Present 'Mountain Mumps'

Have you ever had the mumps? If you have it you felt perfectly miserable, of course. But its dollars to doughnuts you have never had the Himalaya Mountain Mumps. If you will attend the production of the play to bepresented at Central School by the Senior Class on April 14 you will witness the most astounding as well as humorous course of events imaginable, all brought about through this imported brand of mumps. They make enemies love each other — extract gold from a desert waste — bring about the realization of the most glamorous dreams — raise people from obscurity to sorial prominence — cure madness — in fact this simple Mountain Mumps achieves the most impossible feats ever conjured by a magician. You will laugh till the tears roll down your cheeks. You will sit on the edge of your chair in thrilling suspense. And please do not think that you are going to witness a hodge-podge built for laughing purposes only. There is romance, adventure and surprise for the young and old. Do not wait to be last to purchase a ticket for this splendid play or you will be the first to regret it. Find a senior and buy a ticket now!

Married Men To Be Called

State Selective Service headquarters in a letter to all local draft boards, asserted that "the time has now come when married men whose wives are self-supporting will have to be called into military service."

The letter, which clarified an earlier order, made it apparent that dependency would no longer be a blanket excuse for deferment.

Draft officials said an earlier order had stated that the criterion to be used in determining dependency in cases where the wife worked was "whether the wife will suffer a material reduction in the normal standard of living."

This has been found to be too elastic, and the new criterion is simply "whether the wife is self-supporting."

If the wife has been working but has given up such employment within the past year, it is felt that the local board might properly investigate the prospects of the wife again beginning to work," the letter said.

Local boards should complete their original classifications and utilize 1-A men of the first and second registrations before calling persons who were originally classified as 3-A, the order said.

Persons in 3-A who have children or whose wives are expecting babies should not at this time be reclassified as 1-A, the letter added.

BANK CLOSED MONDAY

The First National Bank will be closed Monday, April 6th in observance of Easter Monday which is a legal holiday.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

OUT where I live, in California people spend a good deal of time bathing. It's not because they're so dirty, either. They just bathe and bathe and bathe in the sea water along the beaches, to kinda help themselves to appreciate the climate. There's a lot of fun to be got out of bathing thoroughly in the sea water, right out in the open, when folks in most of the United States have to stay indoors most all day to keep warm.

You can't hardly blame the folks for bathing so much. Why, if you was the only fellow in town that had a bathtub in your house, wouldn't you just soak in that old tub all day, so's to show yourself how much better off you were than your neighbors?

Well, some places along the coast the bathing beauties are pretty free to wear whatever is becoming to them, and it seems the most of them is so modest that they think there's very little that becomes them, so they wear that. And it was at one of these beaches that a young fellow in a kind of a swallish bathing suit come along and met one of these girls that was wearing a mighty select bit of very becoming stuff, made up economical-like, and she looked fine and the guy dug gets to her kinda talking like, so if he would have told that the two of them had something the same taston. She gets on her dignity then, not having anything else at hand to put on, and she says:

"Fresh thing, you thing! I don't know you from Adam; what do you mean by it, eh?"

And the smart-Aleck comes back at her:

"Maybe not, but I am, and I thought only you was Eve."
