A Prayer for the President of the United States
 Thou Great Sovereign of 48 Nations, Thou King of Kings and Lord of hosts, in these perilous times of war and rumors of war, when all the powers of hate have been loosed to kill and to destroy, we pray that Thy Spirit may steady the minds and quicken the hearts of those who call themselves by Thy name, acknowledging Thee as Father.

We pray especially for the President of the United States, upon whom has been laid heavy burden and grave responsibilities, as he speaks for our country and for its people.

Renew his strength as daily his burdens increase. Give him the wisdom and understanding that cometh only from above. Protect him from those whose motive and methods are prompted by the spirit of selfishness or personal ambition.

Show him Thy will. Out of the conflict of counsel may Thy voice come unto him saying: This is the way — walk ye in it. And as Thy will is revealed, increase his faith, so that he may go forth in the consciousness of having fulfilled the task committed to him.

And we pray that he, with us, shall seek above all things else to honor and glorify Thee hastening the coming of Thy Kingdom upon earth, and the rule of the spirit of brotherhood in the lives and the hearts of all peoples of the earth so that all nations may dwell together in peace and unity. Amen.

Suggests To Can With Minimum of Sugar

Most farm homemakers have received their home-canning sugar certificate, and have been allocated one pound of sugar for every four quart of finished fruit to be put up. They may not sound like enough to some people, says Mrs. Cornelia C. Norris, Extension food conservationist, of N. C. State College, but it will suffice if care is used.

The Extension worker makes the following sugar-saving suggestions: If you pack your fruit hot in its own juice, you will need much less sugar than if you pack the fruit cold, then cover it with sugar and water syrup. Remember, sugar is not needed in canning to keep food from spoiling. But it does help the fruit to hold color and flavor. By sweetening the fruit slightly, and then heating it, you can draw out juice from the fruit itself — in many cases make it unnecessary to can any added water.

For juicy fruits, usually it's best to separate the ripper fruits from those less ripe. Then you can crush the ripper fruits, heat them, and extract juice from them. Pre-heat the less ripe fruit, which you have set aside, in this juice. Add sugar to sweeten slightly if necessary. Fill the jars. Make sure there is plenty of juice to cover the fruit. Process in a water bath.

Certain varieties of peaches and pears may not yield enough of their own juice to make the canning liquid. You'll get more juice from these fruits if you slice them and add a little sugar before you pre-cook them. If there isn't enough juice to cover the fruit in the can, use syrup to fill the jars — a syrup made from one or more cups of sugar to one quart of water.
