Better trust all and be deceived.
And weep that trust and that deceiving.
Than doubt one heart that, if believes.
Had blessed one's life with true believing.
Oh, in this mocking world too fast, The doubting fiend o'ertakes our youth;
Better be cheated to the last Than lose the blessed hope of truth.
—Kemble.

There is nothing particularly new about aluminum. It is much in the limelight now because of the war.
Its usefulness is due to:

Lightness, color, ability to take high polish, ability to form alloys of high strength, ductility, malleability, good resistance to oxidation, resistance to corrosion by nitric acid and practically all organic acids, high electrical conductivity, ease of working and machining.

These and numerous other qualities made it popular for use in automobiles. Manufacturers of cars became the largest users of aluminum. With the development of aircraft, its use was largely increased.
It is the lightest metal in common use. Aluminum was first isolated by Wohler in 1827.

Commercial production of the metal did not come until 1888, when Hercules developed the process of reducing aluminum chloride by means of metallic sodium. This process was used for thirty years until the development of the present electrolytic process. On an average the United States produces 40 per cent Canada 25 percent, while the other 50 percent comes from other countries.

Domestically, aluminum has practically displaced tin. Once it is said to have ranged with gold in value.
Research and science changed all that by new processes. Thousands of jobs resulted. As an illustration of the present urge for aluminum, the National Association of Manufacturers tells us that the metal in 60,000 percolators is needed in making one bomber. Therefore, if you joined in giving up your old aluminum pots, pans, etc., during the recent crusade you are a patriot. —

SURE WE CAN

Can you imagine a civilization whose chemists have produced nylon, cellophane, plastics, and hundred of other synthetic substances, that will not be able to produce in two years' time something that can supplant rubber, at least temporarily?

We know such work has been going on for years, but then there was no pressing need. The old adage of the maternal relationship between invention and necessity will fan the flames into activity. And one of these days the news will leak out that the trick has been turned. No more then shall we have to depend on the other side of the world for our rubber supply.—Sunshine Magazine.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The mess kit is one of the most important items in the Soldier's equipment. It consists generally of a pan, a plastic canteen and cup, a fork, knife and spoon, all in a canvas pack cover. The total cost runs up to about $2.00.

Canteens and other items such as handles on knives and forks, formerly made of aluminum, are now plastic.
Alloy has replaced stainless steel. You can buy many of these mess kits for our boys with your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps.
Invest at least 25 percent of your income in War Bonds or Stamps every pay day and top the quota in your county. U. S. Treasury Department

Here and There

By Raymond E. Lynch

Even with the gas rationing on it will pay you to drive down Gold Street and see the Old Bridge's historic fence, which has been painted red, white and blue. I don't know which one of the Bridges to give credit for the unique idea, but I'll bet the same one who designs their Christmas cards had a hand in it.

Another patriotic endeavor which came to my attention this week is a letter to all the Heister Hill employees who are in service. The writer of the letter which is to be a regular affair, calls himself, "The Old Mountaineer" and the epistle is check full of interesting bits of news about the fellow employees of those who are on distant fields in service of their country. The first mailing list contained 125 names, and I know they will enjoy the scribbles of The Old Mountaineer.

In the Mail: A get-well card from Pfc. James W. White, who evidently is somewhere in the Pacific, so the letter was sent by airplane.
Soldier James said: "You should be here with me while you are convalescing, but he failed to tell me where he was and the enclosed card had been consigned by number 378. I deeply appreciate a soldier away out in the Pacific thinking about me enough to take the time and trouble to send me a card airmail.

And here's another card from Red Walker who used to be the right hand man of the Herald office. Red who is stationed in California had this to say: "I get my Herald every Tuesday and you can bet I read every word in the old sheet. Glad to know you are recovering from your recent illness. Hurry back to the old Desk.

One of these days I am going to take time off and write every soldier who has written me, because if they enjoy getting letters from me as much as I do from them, it will be time well spent. When I go to the post office and get a batch of mail, the soldiers letters are the first one I open and read. So boys, write to me and I'll write to you.

I am expecting a number of cards from former City Clerk Karl Sawyer.
He was only gone a couple of days and I received two cards from him.

daughter and a son in the army

HOME COMING DAY
AT OAK VIEW

There will be a Home Coming at Oak View Baptist Church Sunday, Aug. 9. The public is invited to come and bring dinner and enjoy the day. The Ellensboro Quartet will be with us and others are expected.
A revival also begins at that ar doing the preaching.

U. S. Employment Service

Directions for putting into operation the wartime plan of the United States Employment Service, as directed by the War Manpower Commission and Director John J.
Corson, of the Service, have been received in the Shelby Employment Office, from Mrs. Gertrude K. Clinton, director for North Carolina.
Manager W. T. McArver, announces

The wartime plan of service for all offices in the nation provides that four essential activities are to be performed by the local office staffs, including (1) serving essential war industries, (2) farm placement program, (3) occupational inventory, and (4) claims taking activities.

Essential activities, those which the local offices may now serve, Manager McArver explains, are designed as (1) establishments holding war contracts, (2) establishments holding contracts for war contractors, (3) establishments providing equipment and supplies for war contractors or their subcontractors, (4) all phases of agriculture, and (5) essential civilian activities, such as public utilities, transportation, hospitals, etc.

Under this plan, a priority is now established in labor, as well as in supplies and equipment, and local employment offices are directed to provide essential workers for employers on the basis of their priority.
In cases in which such workers are needed by two employers, Manager McArver explains that the war effort must be served first and the more important of war industries must be supplied with workers, before less important industries can be served.

The U. S. Employment Service, in this State, as in all other states, is now on a full wartime basis and is, strictly speaking, a war labor supply agency.

The farm placement program is given an important position, because the "food for freedom" campaign is definitely a wartime activity, Manager McArver states.

The occupational inventory, at present, has to do primarily with the Selective Service registrants.
The Employment Service is directed to sort out all registration cards of those with essential and needed skills and suggest that they be placed in essential industries, rather than in the armed forces, Manager McArver explains.

Former Kings Mt. Woman
Draftman in Navy

Mrs. B. B. Bundy, of Charlotte, before marriage, Miss Vera Pflizer of Kings Mountain, is reported to be the first woman draftman to be employed by the United States Navy.

Mr. Bundy is with the Barrett and Hipp Construction Company, Portsmouth, Va., and Mrs. Bundy is employed at the Norfolk Navy Yard. Mrs. Bundy is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben D. P. Her of this place.

(Opinions Expressed in This Column Are Not Necessarily the View-of This Newspaper.)

There is strong sentiment in the Senate, at this time, against inflationary conditions. Senators George O'Mahony and Vandenberg deposed of "half measures" to control prices.
George said that the administration's wage policy was making it impossible for price controls to operate. O'Mahony wants to meet the inflation threat "head on." Their remarks were made during debate on a bill for the Government to raise wages of its own employees.

Some officials here are predicting that during the next few months GPE price ceilings will be lifted half and then to adjust prices to the higher costs which have not been prevented. No general apply, but a multitude of specific adjustments appear — reacting on others.
They say that "life is inflation, slow and moderate, but not yet a runaway."

65 percent of war contractors are doing an honest and effective job and are receiving only fair and reasonable profits." A great majority are doing a magnificent job in supplying the Navy with its required equipment. That is the summation of the year long investigation by the House Naval Affairs Committee into costs and profiteering in the Naval Expansion program. The other 35 percent, according to the Committee, appear to be taking advantage of the situation and to be making excessive profits. The Committee considered the average net profit on a naval contract to be reasonable. They recommended a statutory method of profit limitation. Chairman Vinson recommended an outright statutory limitation but the Committee said that Congress should decide whether the limitation be by direct act, by excess profit taxes or otherwise.

A great deal of discussion is still heard here about the tax bill and its effect on curbing inflation. The Senate Finance Committee had been disposed to undertake substantial revision of the tax bill had the Treasury come before it with a "realistic wartime program. Committee members wanted suggestions for new sources of revenue — something to curb inflation such as a tax on tax, compulsory savings, a withholding tax, but as expected, Secretary Morgenthau reiterated the request he made to the House — more from the same sources — abolition of special privileges (joint returns, percentage depletion, state and municipal bonds). Mr. Morgan-thau did indicate that as far as corporation tax rates are concerned he is interested primarily in total revenue from this source rather than specific rates.

Representatives of the National Association of Manufacturers, the United States Chamber of Commerce, the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the American Federation of Labor met with President Roosevelt recently to jointly assure the nation of the desire of both employer and employee to contribute their utmost to the war effort.
The delegation assured Mr. Roosevelt that they wished to do everything possible to win the war and informed him that "we realize that in this critical hour the future of our American system, comprising free management and free labor, is at stake. We must win the war to preserve that system for the future." The President thanked them for their support, praised the war-production record, and told them of his resolve to halt the upward spiral of prices.

can best be answered with the advice and cooperation of a national life underwriter.
THE FAMILY DEFENSE SPECIAL cover the "ifs" of my family?

If your answer is "no," let our representative explain a policy designed to meet the present-day need for more income at less cost — THE
