Phenix Store Installs Vegetable Refrigeration

Frank Glase, Manager of the Phenix Mills store is all smiles, due to the fact that two modern refrigeration counters have been installed for the display and storage of fresh fruits and vegetables. The new method of refrigeration is the latest word as fresh produce is kept as fresh as the "morning dew." Produce may be kept for days and yet remain as fresh as if they had just been picked.

Mr. Glase said: "We are proud of our two new counters and want the public to stop by and inspect these machines which not only keeps produce really fresh, but at the same time improves the flavor."

RECEIVES LETTER FROM CHAPLAIN ABOUT BROTHER'S DEATH

Mrs. C. J. Gault, Jr. received the following letter of condolence from the chaplain who knew her brother who was in the army overseas before he died in a foreign hospital.

My dear Mrs. Gault:
I wish to extend to you my deepest sympathy in the untimely loss of your dear brother, Master Sgt. C. M. Dwing.

He was in our Hospital for some time. He was a very co-operative patient. In all of his suffering, he always showed a very fine spirit. In spite of the fact that he had the very best medical care possible, the tumor finally took him away. He was given transfusions, and every other assistance at our command, but the struggle was too great for him.

He passed away on March 20th, and was buried the following day. I held the service by the side of the grave in a certain British Military cemetery. (War conditions make it impossible for me to state the location.) His body was buried in a cemetery reserved for Americans (the cemetery is beautifully kept. The position of his grave within is in Plot 4, Row G, Grave 1.

Let us not consider that the death of your brother was a demonstration of the discipline of God either toward him or toward his loved ones. It is God's pleasure that all men should be free of the possibility of growing into the full likeness of His perfect Son, Jesus. He delights in the untimely death of one. As Jesus says: "The death of Lazarus. I am sure that His heart was made and because the body of your brother was no longer able to support his life. The Lord is anxiously looking for consecrated men and women who will put themselves under His leadership with such devotion that we will have the opportunity to teach them how to overcome this dreaded disease, along with every other disease and influence which rob men of the fulness of life.

In the meantime, I commend you to our Lord. It is He who can enable us to face every experience by His help. We can secure some good out of every burden and difficulty that may come upon us.

I am enclosing a few petals from the flowers which were at your brother's grave.

May the Lord strengthen you and keep you. I am, sincerely,

Sherwood S. Davis, Chaplain,
First Lieutenant,
(Member of the Southwest Texas Annual Conference, Methodist.)

Lowly "Hot Dog" is Elevated

ATLANTA, GA.—The lowly "hot dog" leads the list parade of the American soldier as his favorite food at camp, capturing the fancy that most food ranked as top.

The Quartermaster Corps came up with this list of startling news after a survey of 500 mess halls and 2,000,000 meals in its effort to find out precisely what the soldier likes best to eat. My reports received at Headquarters, Fourth Service Command.

Next to frankfurters, the soldiers prefer boiled ham, roast veal and sausage, the report shows, with roast beef, bacon and cold cuts following in that order. Liver is last on the list.

Potatoes are one of the most popular food in any Army mess hall—mashed.

Apple pie took a beating during the survey when cakes and cookies moved to the No. 1 spot as the favorite dessert, but apples are the first choice of fruits. Even canned fruits and salad finished ahead of the apple pie on the list of "dainties" to top off a meal.

A soldier prefers dry cereals to cooked ones, he doesn't like his coffee strong and he would settle for a cup of cocoa. He wants his eggs to come scrambled and he's very fond of milk.

Passenger transportation in Charleston, S. C., has increased 62 per cent since December, 1938.
