BRIDE-ELECT HONORED AT DINNER BRIDGE

Miss Leone Patterson was a charming hostess on Monday evening of last week when she entertained at a beautifully appointed dinner at her home on West Mountain street. The dinner was given in honor of this week's popular bride, Mrs. James D. Mercer, nee Miss Elizabeth Plunk, and the guests were a group of her closest friends.

The table was unusually lovely with centerpiece of dainty flowers arranged on an oval reflector. Miniature bouquets marked the places for guests.

In addition to the hostess and honor guest, covers were laid for Mrs. Erle Powers, Misses Mary Frances Gant, Salena Parton, Mary Helen Hambricht, Sara Henry Summitt and Frances Goforth.

Bridge and ruck provided entertainment for the evening, with prizes awarded Miss Salena Parton in bridge and Miss Sara Henry Summitt in ruck. The bride-elect was presented silver.

MERCER-PLUNK WEDDING TAKES PLACE IN CHURCH

Miss Elizabeth Plunk became the bride of Second Lieutenant James Darwin Mercer, of Quartermasters Corp United States Army, at four o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the First Presbyterian church.

Rev. F. D. Patrick, the bride's pastor, read the ritual using the impressive ring ceremony.

Ushers were Fred Plunk, Dan Finger, and Rev. Lyndon Jackson.

White gladioli in white floor baskets and cathedral tapers in tall floor chandeliers were arranged in the altar and at the back a low arrangement of gladioli and greenery, placed in front of the cross and cathedral tapers in seven branched antique brass candelabra on either side completed the simple and effective setting.

Mrs. N. P. McGill, organist, played Ave Maria, by Schubert and James Thronburg, soloist, sang Because, by d'Mardelet and I Love to Tarry. For the procession the organist played the Bridal Chorus, from Lohengrin, and for the recessional Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used. During the ceremony Liebstraum by Liszt was played and at the conclusion Mr. Thronburg sang the Lord's Prayer by Malotte.

Miss Leone Patterson was maid-of-honor and the bride's only attendant. She was lovely in a dress fashioned with full skirt of blue tulle and bodice of lace in satin shade. Her head dress was a creation of net and velvet ribbon and she carried an arm bouquet of gladioli, lilies and roses in mixed shades.

The bridegroom had as his best man, Mr. Erle Powers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. R. Grier Plunk. She was radiantly beautiful in her wedding gown of white marquisette fashioned with long fitted bodice, sleeves full to the elbow and finished with tight fitting cuff, pointed train. Her skirt was full, extending into a slight train. Bands of marquisette outlined the bodice and skirt. Her finger tip veil of bridal illusion was held with a tiara of lace and orange blossoms. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of Easter lilies, white roses and white gladioli.

Mrs. Plunk mother of the bride, wore a street costume of black masters crepe with black lace trim black hat and other accessories and a shoulder corsage of tallman roses.

The bride's register was kept in the vestibule of the church and was presided over by Mrs. Erle Powers, Misses Salena Parton, Sara Henry Summitt and Mary Frances Gant.

Soon after the ceremony the couple left for a wedding trip.

The bride donned for traveling a modish black costume, with lace trim, black hat, also trimmed in lace, black shoes and white gloves.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Grier Plunk of Kings Mountain. She is a graduate of Kings Mountain High School and Lenoir-Rhyne College. She is a young woman of unusual beauty and attractiveness and popular among the younger set in Kings Mountain. Since her engagement became known, she has been widely feted.

The bridegroom, a native of Winnsboro, S. C., has resided in Kings Mountain for several years. He is a young man of sterling traits of character and has many friends here. Prior to his induction in the Armed Forces he was an employee of the Griffin Drug company. He has been in training at Camp Lee, Va., where he recently received his commission and will in the near future report for duty at Fort Knox, Ky.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

The engagement of Miss Carolyn Fick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Fick, of Strathmore, Calif., to Sgt. Billie Stanton, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Stanton, is announced. Wedding plans are indefinite due to Mr. Stanton serving in North Africa.

ENTERTAIN AT CAKE CUTTING

Mr. and Mrs. Erle Powers entertained members of the Mercer-Plunk wedding party and additional guests at a cake cutting at their home on West Mountain street, following the rehearsal Tuesday night.

The house was arranged with mixed garden flowers and in the dining room the bridal color note white and green was observed.

The table was spread with lace and had for its centerpiece a four-tiered wedding cake, laid in white with decorations of tiny white roses and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. White tapers in crystal holders completed the table appointments. White flowers and lighted tapers graced the buffet.

After the bridal couple cut their
