WITH THE BOYS IN SERVICE

Dear Mr. Lynch:

Here I sit by a stove on a bunk somewhere in the North Atlantic located on Island X, this is all I can tell you about our location.

There is no place on earth as good as the various places from which we came. Any man in service will return to his home with a greater appreciation for civilian life than he has ever known.

I have been promoted several times since I came into the service. I only have one more ring on the ladder to reach the goal that I have been striving to reach. I have just been made C. M. 2C and am striking for C. M. 1C.

Tell the boys if they want to join a branch of the service that is tough in many respects to get into the U. S. Navy's Seabees. The honey bees don't work in the rain but we stop for nothing.

The boys who drink can get it for twelve cents per quart.

Tell Charley Thomasson and B. S. Peeler not to sell all their lumber to C. T. Bennett as I may need a job when I get out of here. I often think about the boys I used to work with and wish for them the best of success. I wonder if Aladdin Bennett has any last words?

My sister has been sending me some of the papers from your town. I always enjoy reading of the other boys that I know who are making good for Uncle Sam.

Those who wish to attend church services usually find time on Sunday. I could never understand why people refrain from going to preaching. The most wonderful experiences that come my way to the privileges and duty of church service. It is the greatest opportunity that I have of pulling myself together after a strenuous week. I shall never despise the church for what it has meant to me.

Keep the good work up until victory comes and all the shall come home to loved ones and friends.

Yours truly,

J. Baxter Payseur

Somewhere In North Atlantic

Dear Mr. Lynch:

I guess you are surprised to hear fro mmome one you don't even know but I though I would write and tell you that I'm still reading the Kings Mountain Herald which mom has been sending me and enjoy them lots. Keeping up with the news back home. It doesn't get over here so often. But when I was in the states. I got it every week.

We have a little paper we get over here everyday except Sunday, "Stars and Stripes.", and its sure nice to get that to read. Sincerely,

Cpl. C. E. Watterson.

Salvage Repair Shops Net Big Savings

ATLANTA, Ga.—In the past year nearly $2,000,000 have been returned to Uncle Sam's pockets as net savings through operation of reclamation and salvage repair shops at Army Posts in the seven southeastern states, according to the fiscal year's report of the Army Service Forces' Quartermaster Branch Fourth Service Command.

These shops repair anything the soldier uses in the way of clothing, shoes or equipment. They are operated by [illegible] under supervision of officers and they don't stop repairing articles, time after time, until each is worn beyond repair, then they are sold for salvage. In the case of clothing, the "too-worn-to-repair" items are cut into pieces of cloth to be used as patches and only the scraps are sold for salvage.

The reports for the fiscal year ending June 30 and just released, show that during the preceding 12 months the repair shops at the many Army posts and camps repaired 5,816,788 articles consisting of: 2,985,547 pairs of shoes; 2,903,874 items of clothing — shirts, trousers, coats, overcoats, neckties, caps, underwear — plus textile and miscellaneous articles; 412,325 canvas and webbing pieces, such as belts cartridge belts, tents and the like and in addition, 415,042 items were altered.

Salaries of officers and civilians employees, plus overhead expenses of all shop were $2,618,753.22. The value of the items repaired—figured at one half the original cost — was $7,584,225.73, leaving a net saving to the government of $4,965,472.51.

But that's not all. Not figured in the above are 81,425 metal and wood repair jobs accomplished while 13,038 separate repair tasks were performed on typewriters and office machines.

HAY DRIERS

The cost of 20' barn-type hay driers has ranged from $50 to $250, covering the materials and 1-4 the value of the motor, says David S. Weaver, in charge of Agricultural Engineering at State College.

Can You Picture NORTH CAROLINA without Newspapers?

Every hour of the day headline news of overwhelming interest to every person in North Carolina is being made all over the world. But without our modern communication systems and particularly our newspapers it would be next to impossible to find out what's going on.

Getting even closer to home, we wouldn't know what local boys are back on furlough—what the ball scores are—who's getting married and when—what's happening in the comic-strip world — what events are taking place all over town.

All of us should feel proud of the fine job newspapers are doing to keep North Carolina in touch with the times. It's a strong and free press, serving free people—one of the first things the dictators would suppress if they had the chance! And it would be hard to over-estimate the part played by North Carolina's 43 daily newspapers and 127 weekly newspapers in furthering the war effort. Nearly a million people buy these papers—far greater numbers read them—the whole State relies upon them for information and inspiration.

For this reason Greyhound depends upon such newspapers as this one to carry its information on bus service to those North Carolinians who travel. Greyhound, in turn, carries many newspapers to rural areas not served by any other transportation system.

As fellow citizens of this State, the Greyhound Lines take much pleasure in helping to make our neighbors and good neighbors of all the communities we serve in North Carolina—binding them to each other and to the rest of the country, as newspapers do.
