Tire Shortage Acute

Reflecting the shortage of new passenger and truck tires, OPA's quota for November are about 20 percent less than in October for new truck tires and 14 percent few er new passenger tires, Mrs. Nell D. Thomson, clerk of the Local Rationing Board has announced.

At the same time, Mrs. Thomson said, OPA has increased by 25 percent the quota for used or recapped tires (Grade III).

"The gravity of the truck tire supply," Mrs. Thomson added, "is pointed to an OPA memorandum to all rationing boards that the nation is confronted with a serious truck tire shortage and local boards will have to use all of their agenuity to avert a serious mass transportation breakdown."

SOMETHING TO READ ABOUT!

girl, a Gift to Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Ware on their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary received first placing. A study, "The Light That Never Dies," arranged and painted by Mrs Palmer Fulton, while a student at Limestone College, received second place. This picture carries within the delicate lines and shadows a message the world needs today, the open Bible.

Two splendid characters studies, "Rangers" and "Italian Girl", and two fruit designs painted from natural fruit by Mrs. Lawrence Massey, were most tempting. A scene of Piedmont Carolina overlooking the panorama towards Bessemer City from Dr. J. E. Anthony's farm and one of Lake "Montonia" painted by Mrs. E. W. Griffin made one conscious of nature's beauties. Two studies of animal life, "Bird Dogs and their Prey," by Mrs. B. S. Neill would appeal to every one trained in the art of hunting.

The picture of the old Baptist Church painted in 1913 by the late Mrs. Lula Carpenter Herndon reveal the wheels of progress continue to move. A "Street Scene of New Orleans," by Mrs. Phillip Padgett, and a "Nature Study," by J. L. Gettlemyre, Jr., both in water colors were excellent modern subjects.

"Dutch Sweethearts" by Miss Fannie Carpenter, an "Old Dutch Wind mill," by Mrs. J. E. Honeycutt were most attractive. "Christmas Carols" represented by a bird in a bunch of holly in the snow painted by the late Mrs. Lee Ramseur was a song of cheer within itself.

"Breath of Spring," depicted by a vase of apricots in Wisteria painted by the late Mrs. Potts of Charlotte when a girl. "My Pet," a lovely portrait of a child holding her pet, painted by Mrs. Billie Potts Leitch of New York City who has won distinction in commercial art as designer for Celanese Corporation of America. The former and latter are mother and sister of Mrs Merritt Ware.

Last but not least were scenes of "Magnolia Gardens," and a big red juicy "Watermelon" painted by Mrs. Hattie Grissett, grocery of York, S. C., aunt of Mrs. Ramseur, that made your mouth water and a source of regret the good old summer fruits were now a memory.

The purpose of the Art Exhibit was to encourage creative ability in children and everyone, for that matter, using natural beauty with which we are surrounded, not only to practice it in drawing and painting but in daily living and exemplify same by the Art of service.—Reported.

—THE HERALD $2.00 A YEAR—

Take a trip on this Tragic "Magic Carpet"

1 First stop, Athens. A sick child collapses before your eyes. If, in your pocket, you had the medicine to save her, would you give it? Would you? You would!

2 Now you're on a mountain road in Yugoslavia. Knife-sharp ice tears at the half-bare feet of the guerilla fighter struggling on his way. On his way—if you please—to blow up a railroad bridge and plunge a trainload of Nazi troops and supplies to destruction. Would you give him a pair of shoes to help him on his mission? Would you? And how you would!

3 The magic carpet whisks you, this time, right back here to our town for the moment. Another case of wartime "juvenile delinquency" stands before a magistrate. A girl who needs help, guidance. Would you give it if you could? Well, you can!

4 All aboard...for the South Pacific. A God-forsaken Marine post. Nothing to do. Suppose you could give a party for the guys who are fighting your fight. Would you? You would!

5 Next stop...China. Freezing, starving, dying. For five years they've been our fighting allies, and the Japs haven't licked them yet. Would you help them to keep on fighting ...on our side? Would you? You would!

On and on it goes...the world around. And that is why this new, efficient way to help has been created. Our community's war fund in which The National War Fund participates. You give once...and for all! Seventeen War Agencies and your own local agencies are banded together. Look over the list. Figure out what you'd give each agency. Add it up ...and double it!
